Ringler Gives Farewell Address At Grange Convention

Ruth Osborne, winner of the 1992 Granger of the Year Award.

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — After four years in office, William H. Ringler stepped down as master (president) of the Pennsylvania State Grange in a farewell address at the Scottish Rite Consistory to more than 600 Grangers this week during the state session.

"Among my goals when I assumed the mastership of Pennsylvania State Grange was to help save the family farm," Ringler said. "While the general public is more aware of the problem of surpluses, the fact remains some important changes and some important steps have to be taken if our food supply is to remain abundant."

"The truth is our young people who are of farm background are not remaining in production agriculture. I believe the next several decades will be decisive ones relative to production agriculture. Simply stated, the farmer is not being justly compensated for his investment and for his hours of labor," said Ringler, a potato farmer in Somerset County for 47 years.

In order to help save the family farm, Ringler said the Grange has worked closely with other agricultural organizations, promoted proper legislation, spoke at civic organizations to inform urban people of the difficulties of farming, impressed upon young people the importance of agriculture, as well as supported the Foundation for Better Living which sponsors Ag in the Classroom.

Hiller Elected Master

A Williamsport resident has been elected to the highest office in the Pennsylvania State Grange by the delegate body during the 120th annual State Grange Session.

Gordon Hiller has been named Pennsylvania State Grange Master (president) for the next two years. In this position, Hiller will be responsible for supervising the state office in Harrisburg and overseeing all state grange programs, as well as visiting Granges, hearing concerns of rural Pennsylvania, and helping members solve problems.

Hiller is a retired farmer, retired conservation program specialist for the Department of Environmental Resources, and retired Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. (Turn to Page A28)

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — In any contest, chance favors a prepared mind — and no minds had a better chance to get prepared than those at the five-county Agricultural Field Day held at the Manheim Fairgrounds on Tuesday.

About 500 FFA's representing schools from Berks, Lebanon, York, Schuylkill, and Lancaster counties competed in a wide array of events. (Turn to Page A25)

Dairylea Reports Good Year

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — "The 1992 fiscal year was one of substantial growth for our cooperative," announced Dairylea Chief Executive Officer Rick Smith at the cooperative's 1992 annual meeting held mid-October in Liverpool, N.Y.

Dairylea is a Syracuse-based dairy cooperative with 2,500 farmer members and affiliate members throughout the Northeast and it participates in a milk marketing network stretching from Maine to Maryland to Ohio.

More than 800 member farmers and industry guests attended the two-day event, which included a management presentation by

Madigan Calls President 'Farmer Friendly'

EVERETT NEWSWANGER

Managing Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan, on the road in 42 states for the Bush/Quayle reelection campaign, made a stop at Hershvale Farm Monday at noon.

With about 75 farmers, partisan politicians, and agribusiness leaders sitting on hay bales and feed bags in the upper floor of the bank dairy barn, Madigan called President Bush "Farmer Friendly" and said, "We are not in a recession."

"What everyone is calling a recession is not a recession because we have positive economic growth in the U.S.," Madigan said. "A recession is when you have negative economic growth, and our growth is positive. But we have a terrible time getting out that message."

Madigan blamed the national media for the negative economic stories, quoting inaccuracies in the media organization report of the 2,793 economic reports on network news, they all have been negative. "I even saw a lead story on CNN about how hard the recession has been on dogs and cats," he said.

He said many people think the economic slowdown is only in the U.S. But there has been inflation and high interest rates all over the world in the last 10 years.

"We have brought our inflation of more than 14 percent to less than three percent, and we have brought interest rates down from 21 percent to 6 percent," Madigan said. "In the '80s farmers were leaving the farm at the rate of 12 percent per year. Now this is down to less than one percent. In 1987 we had $150 billion of farm debt. Today we have less than $100 billion."

WILLOW VALLEY (Lancaster Co.) — Outgoing president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association Tom Pantano set the stage for banter when he broadcast live from "Chicken Talk, Pennsylvania," during the industry's annual banquet on October 27. An on-the-spot survey conducted by Pantano revealed that most of the 500 persons attending the banquet support reelection of President Bush.

aled that most of the 500 persons attending the banquet support reelection of President Bush.

On the serious side, members of the association chose Mike Harold of Intervet to be president of the association for a three year term. Other members newly-elected to the 12-member board include Guy Martin of Sauder Eggs, Mark Price of Pennfield, and Robert Armstrong of Garber Farms.

The annual banquet, held at Willow Valley Palm Court, is primarily a social event and a time to recap the poultry industry's activities during the past year.

Pantano reminded members that the association sponsors Poultry Progress Day, the largest poultry seminar held in the Northeast; presents Poultry Family Spirit awards to poultry farms that have remained in the family for two or more generations; holds a teacher's institute to educate 100 home economists about safe food handling; provide scholarships to poultry. Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, October 28, 1992

Trucklot buying interest was very light for white meat items, fair to fairly good and improving for dark meat items. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts for retail needs were fully adequate with trucklot volumes reported at competitive prices. The trade sentiment was quite unsettled. Line run breasts were available with trading reported at lower prices. However, buyers continued very cautious and holding receipts to immediate needs only. Most dark meat items were in good balance with thighs in the tightest position, and leg quarters improved for next week needs. Yellow skin wings were ample to instances burdensome.

Shreds stalks yet won't plug up!

The perfect tool for ridge and minimum till

The Furst harrow cleans ridge tops, creating excellent seedbed. Unique "Spreading Action" tines hug the soil at faster speeds to shred and evenly spread no-till stalks in the spring.

Dozens of uses:

The harrow used behind a disc or cultivator, incorporates herbicides in one pass. Used alone, it covers broadcasted seed, renovates, maintains pastures and more

The harrow/cart (an optional harrow carrier as shown) follows tight turns, has folding wings for easy transport. Harrow and cart are available in 16 to 42 ft. widths.

"If you won't buy one for you, buy one for your family."

"I thought I was a tough guy. And I'd been using PTO's for years. But I found out I was no match for an unprotected PTO. Sure, I suffered some, but I managed—my family suffered a lot more. Not only the doctor's bills, but caring for me through all the pain and hospital visits. Now, things I can't do with one arm have to be done by my wife or my kids. But there's no way I want to put them in the same danger I put myself in every day. Thankfully, at long last, somebody's designed a PTO guard that really guards."

IS UP TO YOU.

PAYBACK 24™

A complete feed program for profitable herd replacement from Agway.

Until a heifer freshens and enters the milking string, she's pure expense. And every day beyond the optimum 24 months costs you an extra $2 to $3 per day, per head in additional feed costs and lost milk production. At 28 months, for example, that's $10,000 to $15,000 worth of lost income in a 120-cow herd. A lot of money, even in good times.

Yet on many Northeast dairy farms, first-calf heifers don't freshen until 28, 30 or even 32 months!

The Problem?

Inadequate nutrition and poor management practices that result in undernourished, under-sized heifers, unable to achieve optimum growth and full potential.

The Solution? PAYBACK 24.

Payback 24 is a comprehensive program consisting of eight high-quality Agway feeds, intensive nutrition and cost-effective management practices—all designed to help you raise bigger, healthier heifers faster. For fewer dollars. Ready to breed at 13 to 15 months. Ready to start paying their own way at 24 months with greater lifetime potential and profitability. Three brand-new feeds were specially developed by Agway for use in this program: a Calf Pre-Starter that delivers exceptional performance, unlike any other in the Northeast and a calf starter containing highly palatable Ruma Sweet™, preferred by calves more than 4 to 1 in a Land O' Lakes trial of 15 competitive calf starter feeds. A selection of heifer feeds containing Bovatec® in several protein levels rounds out the Payback 24 feed program.

NOVEMBER 2-8, 1992

SADIE HAWKINS DAY, NOVEMBER 7.

A PRESIDENTIAL TIE

On November 7, 1876, the presidential election ended in an electoral tie between Democrat Samuel J. Tilden and Republican Rutherford B. Hayes. Tilden had a huge popular majority (250,000 more popular votes than Hayes), but he received only 184 electoral votes (one short of victory) and Hayes won 165 electoral votes. The decision went to the House of Representatives after some of the votes in the southern states had been challenged. After picking up all the 20 challenged votes the 54-year-old Hayes was declared a winner on March 3, 1877. It was said a deal was made between the Republicans and the Southern Democrats to end reconstruction in the South.

TIP OF THE WEEK

Make dish washing easier by soaking dishes with dried egg or milk in cold water instead of hot.

EARTHWISE

Many people feel guilty about using their dishwashers, but the good news is that a fully loaded automatic dishwasher uses less energy overall than washing the same amount of dishes by hand. Scrape the dishes to remove leftover food particles prior to loading, and turn off the machine before the heated drying cycle — the dishes will dry just fine without it and you'll avoid melting your plasticware. Most dishwashers now come with an "energy saver" setting that bypasses hot air drying altogether.

ELECTION CAKE

2 packages yeast
1 cup warm water
½ cup butter
1½ cup sugar, divided
2 eggs
8 cups flour
½ pound raisins
1 cup milk

Mix yeast with water and ½ cup sugar. Cream 1 cup sugar with butter. Add eggs and yeast; blend well. Add 4 cups of flour; beat well. Mix raisins with remaining flour, add to batter. Add milk until dough is kneadable. Knead for 10 minutes. Divide dough in half and place in two greased loaf pans. Let rise for 3 to 4 hours. Bake at 350° F for 50 minutes.

Farms: Risky For Children

Every year between 175 and 300 children are killed in the United States while working or playing on the farm. Another 23,000 are seriously injured.

Why are children at such risk on farms? Terry Moddcox, Dairy Extension Agent in Huntingdon County says part of the answer lies within the structure of the agricultural industry. Production agriculture employs many individuals whose age is outside of that found in other industries -- below the age of 18 and over the age of 62.

Children on farms are often exposed to a wide array of occupational and environmental hazards that are not present in other industries. In addition to young individuals who work on the farm, many youngsters live and play around the farm exposing themselves to hazards that are uniquely dangerous.

Children take on many roles around the farm including working, accompanying adults, and playing. Agriculture-related injuries can occur during all of these facets of farm life.

Many children are injured while working. Injuries can occur when children operate and work around machinery. Injury scenarios can include tractor rollovers, falls from equipment or ladders, and entanglement in power take-off shafts and other machine components such as augers. Children are injured during livestock-related chores, such as feeding animals or cleaning out livestock pens, and are most often kicked, bitten, or crushed by animals much larger than themselves.

What you can do:

1) Make sure that a child is old enough (physically and mentally capable) to safely complete a job.

2) Before allowing a child to operate or work around machinery, train them in its proper operation, making sure that the child understands the following:

- * how to shut off the machine
 - * the basic theory of how the machine functions
 - * what aspects of the machine present special hazards
- 3) Allow the child worker to take rest breaks when tired
- 4) Remember that the child's understanding of the machine is not as thorough as yours.

Children have been injured while accompanying adults. As the extra rider, numerous children have been run over after falling off a tractor. Too many children have been injured or killed by riding on trailed equipment and falling off, sometimes going underneath the equipment itself. Children riding in grain trucks and gravity-flow unloading wagons have been suffocated by flowing grain.

What you can do:

1) For your child's sake do not let them ride on equipment unless it is specifically designed for an extra rider.

2) Do not let youngsters enter a grain truck, wagon, or grain bin, especially when the grain is flowing.

3) Always keep an accompanying child within eyesight. Know their whereabouts at all times.

Children are injured while playing. The farmyard can seem like a giant playground just waiting to be explored and conquered. The painful reality is that kids are injured while playing in work areas or while watching someone else work.

All too real examples include: being backed over by trucks, tractors, and implements; falling off of ladders, hay mows, or through floors; becoming entangled in augers, power take-offs, or gutter cleaners; ingesting milk pipeline cleaner, pesticides, and other harmful chemicals; and falling into and drowning in manure pits, lagoons, wells, stock tanks, and ponds.

What you can do:

1) Provide a play area that is fenced off from machinery and other hazards.

2) Designate hazardous farm areas as "off limits" to children.

3) Make sure you know where your children are at all times.

4) Be sure ladders that are "off limits" end at least seven feet above the ground to prevent child access.

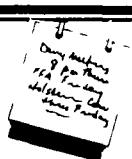

5) Do not leave pesticide or caustic cleaner containers in child accessible areas.

6) Do not let youngsters play in grain bins, grain trucks, or grain wagons.

7) Maintain your equipment and be sure that all guards and shields are in place and functioning.

Be Careful! The fall season with corn and bean harvest under way is a prime time for an accident to happen.

To Check Alfalfa Fields

Now is a good time to start determining which alfalfa fields need to be rotated to another crop.

Start this fall by counting the number of plants per square foot. Fields with 4 to 5 plants per square foot should be considered good candidates for rotation next spring.

However, knowing the number of plants per square foot should not be the only criteria for selection. Individual plants may respond to low plant population by producing more stems next season.

Wisconsin research shows that maximum yields are produced with 55 or more stems per square foot. Next spring after growth starts, return to your suspect fields and count the number of stems per square foot. When stems average only 40 per square foot, you may expect yields to be reduced by 25 percent.

Identification of suspected fields in the fall will improve time management next spring when things are rushed.

To Give Housed Cattle Attention

As we bring cattle, especially heifers, in from pastures it may be beneficial to deworm them. Consult your veterinarian for specific recommendations.

At the same time, ask your veterinarian about the need for specific vaccinations, especially for respiratory diseases.

To minimize the risk of health problems with confined cattle, avoid overcrowding. Also, provide them with well-ventilated, draft-free and dry facilities. If necessary, install a ventilation system.

Remember, fresh air is much more important than warm air. If you have fans installed, be sure they are routinely serviced and the louvers are clean and open and close properly.

Check the air inlets. The inlets are what makes the ventilation system function. They need to admit fresh air to all parts of the stable and enough air to avoid drafts and to let the fans remove stale air.

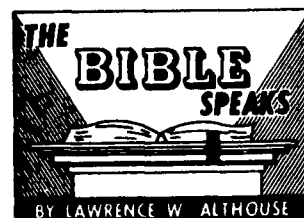

To Prevent Calf Scours

One of the most common diseases of young calves is diarrhea. It is responsible for most of the deaths that occur within a week of birth.

The most important cause of infectious diarrhea is Escherichia coli. Young calves may pick up this bacteria from the environment and dirty feeding utensils. Thus, sanitation becomes very critical.

Be sure the young calf is born and raised in a clean environment. Because of its nutritional value, milk is a good media for bacteria growth. It is very important to clean and sanitize milk feeding equipment after each feeding.

AN END TO LIMPING
November 1, 1992

Background Scripture:

1 Kings 17:1-7; 18.

Devotional Reading:

1 Kings 18:30-39.

Some years ago, a nationally prominent clergyman was challenged to appear on a television program with an equally well known atheist. During their debate, the clergyman lost his temper and, in the view of many of those who watched the encounter, the debate as well. The clergyman became so angry with the atheist that he lost his ability to discuss the issues.

Actually, this well-known atheist makes a lot of Christians angry, some of them downright hateful. She is the kind of person that lots of Christians love to hate. They regard her as a great threat to Christianity, little realizing that their angry responses to her are greater threats to the cause of Christ than her atheistic professions.

BAAL & GOD

The question is not how vigorously we defend the Gospel, but how energetically we live it. To some degree, this was the situation with which Elijah confronted the people of Israel. These people were not in open rebellion against God. So far as we know, there were no atheists among them. They counted themselves as loyal Israelites, as part of God's chosen people.

So, it was not that they had chosen Baal instead of God, but Baal in addition to God. They were enjoying what seemed to them the best of both worlds, serving both God and Baal. And that is why Elijah challenged them with these ringing words: "How long will you go limping with two different opinions?" (18:31). The "limping," scholars think, is a reference to a ritualistic dance which the priests used to perform around the altar, beding and leaping with various contortions. So, Elijah is probably using this strange dance as an analogy: they are limping through life, literally hopping from one foot to the other — obviously, a ridiculous spectacle.

To me this story's main relevance for us today is our similar disposition to count ourselves as Christians, yet live by the standards of the world. Vocally, we declare our allegiance to the way of Christ, but when it comes down to day to day living, it is the Baal of materialism and secular values by which we live our lives and measure virtually everything. Instead of "Like a mighty army moves the Church of God," we limp through life, hopping from one foot to another. To evoke—and perhaps, mix—yet another metaphor: it is virtually impossible to march while you're straddling a fence!

CHOOSE & SERVE

So Elijah lays down the challenge: "If the Lord is God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him" (18:21b). Instead of trying to worship and serve both God and Baal, decide who you will choose as Lord and follow him. If the secular world is right about what is important in life, what constitutes success and failure, what are life's highest values, then, by all means embrace the secular and stop giving lip-service to God. Don't bother defending God. It isn't defense he wants from us, but obedience. It isn't words, but deeds.

But, if we really believe that the love of God in Jesus Christ is the most important reality in the world, then we must let that reality dominate our lives. In other words, Christ challenges us as Elijah challenged the people of Israel: make your choice and live accordingly. You can have the world or you can have the Gospel—but not both. It is time to stop limping and start marching.

Fixed competitive payments
Flexible payment schedules
Year-end tax planning
100% deductibility

Some people get all the breaks.

Put the breaks on your tax bill. Get your equipment with a true tax lease by December 31 and your payments are 100% tax-deductible as an operating expense. Plus, with an annual payment schedule, you can benefit from a large tax write-off this year and not make a second payment for as many as 12 full months.

You'll have several more good reasons to look forward to a happy new year. You can lock in your order now and take delivery in 1993. You'll enjoy fixed, competitive payments and can choose a payment schedule that allows you to skip payments in the months or season of lowest income. You also can get whatever you want right now without jeopardizing your ability to fully depreciate other assets bought earlier in the year.

Find out how lease financing can help you get all the year-end breaks you deserve. Contact your local Telmark representative today, or call 315-449-7964.

give your vegetables wrap around protection

AgTec's rotating vegetable head gives complete coverage with wrap around protection. 190 MPH Air Stream carries mist-size droplets that penetrate and cling, even to the undersides of leaves. Without leaving the tractor seat you can rotate the head 270° to spray with the wind and adjust the deflector for swaths up to 60 feet, with AgTec low volume efficiency you'll reduce chemical and fuel costs, and spray more acres a day. The rotating head is available in 3 pt. hitch and pull-type AgTec sprayers with PTO-drive

Eastern Milk Co-op Re-elects Gardner

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairy farmer Lewis Gardner of Galeton, has been re-elected president of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative.

Gardner was elected at the board of directors' reorganizational meeting, following Eastern's annual business and delegate meetings. Also elected were:

- Timothy Bryant of Pawlet, Vt., vice president.
- Edwin Schoen of Phelps, N.Y., secretary.
- George Mesick, South Scho-dack, N.Y., treasurer.
- Harold Bailey, Roaring Spring, assistant secretary-treasurer.

An eastern member for eight years, President Gardner was first elected to the board in 1987. He became vice president a year later, and then was elected to his first term as president in 1989. As president, Gardner represents 3,100 farm families in nine states. As a member of the board, he also represents some 200 farmers in a district that straddles the western portions of New York and Pennsylvania.

Gardner and his wife, Lois, purchased their 100-acre Potter County farm in 1978. They milk 45 cows out of a herd of 90 Holsteins. Their sons, Lewis III, 19, and Levi Earl, 16, help on the farm. A third son, Lee Thomas, 18, worked on the farm until entering the Marine Corps last month.

VICE PRESIDENT BRYANT operates a 315-acre farm with a herd of 175 Holsteins, including 85 milking cows. He and his wife, Nancy, have three children, Laura Jean, 19, Timothy Jr., 18, and Robert Stephen, 14. Bryant represents some 200 farmers in a district covering half of Vermont. Prior to joining Eastern's board in 1984, he was president of Northern Farms Cooperative, which merged with Eastern. He has been vice president of Eastern since 1989.

TREASURER MESICK begins his fourth term in that post. First elected to the board in 1984, he represents about 200 farmers in a district that stretches from the St. Lawrence River, across the Mohawk Valley and into Massachusetts. He operates an 800-acre farm, milking 150 Holsteins, in the southern end of Rensselaer County. He also is raising a small herd of buffalo. Mesick has lived and worked on the family farm all his life. He and his wife, Gerry, took it over in 1960, and today two sons work on the farm with them (David and James).

SCHOEN begins his third term as secretary as well as his fourth full year as a director, representing about 200 farmers in Central New York, the Finger Lakes region and part of the Southern Tier. A member of Eastern since 1970, Schoen milks 85 Holstein cows on a 400-acre farm. He and his wife, Jean, are also active in another business, Schoen-Wyffels Homes Inc., which markets log homes. The couple has three daughters (Heather, 24, Kari, 23, and Tricia, 20).

BAILEY begins his third term as assistant secretary-treasurer. First elected to the board in 1988, Bailey represents some 200 farmers in a district stretching from central Pennsylvania into Maryland. An Eastern member since 1966, Bailey operates a 138-acre farm with his brother, Bernard, milking 90 cows out of a herd of 180 Holsteins. Bailey and his wife, Linda, have four children, Robert, 20; Diane, 19; Paul, 16, and Mark, 14.

Eastern Milk is a dairy cooperative headquartered in Syracuse, N.Y.

Kurt Good, right, of Denver recently represented the state pork industry at the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) Pork Leadership Institute. Jody Hauge, Institute Advisory Committee chairperson, congratulates Good for participating in the program that focused on key pork industry issues.

Denver Young Adult Participates At Institute

DES MOINES, Iowa — Kurt Good of Denver is one of 32 young adults to complete the National Pork Producers Council's (NPPC) Pork Leadership Institute held recently.

The Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council selected Good as the state representative to the Institute, which included travel to Des Moines, Iowa and Washington, D.C.

Kurt is the son of Ezra and Elsie Good.

While at the Institute, the young adults discussed important pork industry issues with producer leaders, NPPC staff, and outside experts on subjects such as animal welfare, agricultural legislation, pork quality assurance and consumer trends.

"Pork Leadership Institute participants are future leaders of our industry," said Jody Hauge, a Leith, N.D. producer who serves as chairperson of the Institute's Advisory Committee. "The Institute gives them a greater awareness of the issues that affect the pork industry and its customer, the consumer."

During their visit to NPPC headquarters in Des Moines, Institute participants learned about pork industry efforts to create leaner pork, toured a hog operation, and visited with Iowa pork producers.

While in Washington, D.C., the group discussed environmental, foreign trade, and animal welfare issues. They also visited with members of congress and their staff and learned how various organizations serve the pork industry.

In the year following the Institute, each of the participants will work within their state to inform the general public and producers about issues that affect the pork industry.

Dairymen Told: "Don't Look To Government"

JOYCE BUPP

York Co. Correspondent

GETTYSBURG (Adams County) — "We can get anything out of the government we want - as long as we're willing to pay for it."

That was the message from president Fred G. Butler, Sr., to members attending the Middle Atlantic Division of Dairymen, Inc.'s annual meeting, October 23 at the Ramada Inn. The division headquarters are in Sykesville, Maryland, with Dairymen corporate offices in Louisville, Kentucky.

Butler reviewed recent dramatic increases in dairy productivity, with the average production per cow having increased by about 5 percent in the last year, compared to more usual annual increase of 1.5 percent.

The effect of these production increases on future milk prices partially hinges on predictions Secretary of Agriculture Madigan must make under the present 1990 Farm Bill legislation. If the Secretary's predictions are for an estimated 5 billion pounds of production over commercial needs, the milk support price would drop 50-cents. But if he estimates production at 7 billion pounds more than commercial needs, a mandatory supply-management program would be implemented.

"This would probably be in the form of increased assessments," Butler said, adding, "I hope the Secretary will be kind to us and his prediction will not be over 5 billion pounds."

Butler noted that some Midwest dairy producers want a dollar increase in the present support price, from $10.10 to $11.10. While Congress could accept such a proposal, it would predictably trigger additional assessments, perhaps as much as an additional 20 to 25-cents beyond the current 13-1/2-cent per hundredweight assessment.

"Our only hope would be that Congress would admit that the present 13-1/2-cent assessment dairy farmers are paying is much more than is necessary to finance the over-production of today," Butler said.

Management reports to producers likewise repeatedly emphasized that dairy producers must look within their own industry - and not to Washington, D.C. - for long-term improved market stability and profitability.

James McDowell, Jr., chief executive officer of Dairymen, Inc., said producers need only two things from the government.

"We need a support price program, not a guaranteed market for all milk, and we need to maintain the Federal Order system for the orderly marketing of milk," McDowell believes.

He reminded Dairy producers that, as numbers of raw milk buyers and retailers of milk diminish, those remaining yield increasing market power. McDowell cited milk selling for 58-cents per gallon and bread for 9-cent per loaf in one Southern food retailing price war as an example of strategies used to increase market share.

McDowell advised that, through their organizations, producers increasingly working together through joint ventures, strategic alliances and marketing agencies to deal with changing and larger buyers.

"Producers must get stronger if we are to succeed," he said. "Producers must have some sort of equal power to deal with the market place."

Briefly reviewing the cooperative's financial status, McDowell told Dairymen members that some $40 million in expenses have been cut in the last four years, debt reduced by $20 million, and interest cut in half due to debt paydown and reduced rates. More than 97-cents of every dollar of monies collected by the cooperative in the 1992 fiscal year has been returned to members.

Addressing the anti-trust suits in which Dairymen's processing subsidiary and numerous other dairy processors serving school business have been involved, McDowell said the "nightmare we inherited" is almost totally behind the cooperative. He predicted that ongoing investigations of school milk bid-rigging by dozens of processors in more than 30 states could result in up to $150 million in fines.

Division manager Boyd M. Cook reported profitability in the division's supply and hauling divisions, despite increases in both workmen's compensation and vehicle insurances. He commended members for their adherence to shipping quality milk, noting that only three antibiotic-positive loads were dumped through the first nine months of 1992.

Members have responded to Dairymen programs to encourage milk production in the fall months, Cook said. Both Fall Incentive and Volume Incentive programs will continue, with some fine-tuning adjustments.

Two major problems cited by Cook as having impacted Dairymen this year were the final resolution of the anti-trust settlements and the inability to maintain adequate margins in fluid processing.

Legal settlements will be written off, at the rate of about five cents per hundredweight, against net margin patronage previously allocated from 1984-88, when the alleged violations occurred.

Cook re-emphasized the need for dairy farmer unity in order to gain a fair share of the consumer dollar, including over-order premiums that have been negotiated in Federal Order 4 by the Middle Atlantic Cooperative Milk Marketing Agency (MACMMA). MACMMA is comprised of the Dairymen Middle Atlantic division, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative and Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Several thousand farmer-members of Agway met at the New York State Fairgrounds in Syracuse October 29 and 30 to take part in the 28th Agway annual meeting of the farm supply, energy, and food marketing cooperative.

Charles F. Saul, Agway president and CEO since February, reported the past 10 months of calendar 1992 have been a period of intensive study to determine more clearly where Agway stands in relation to its markets and what the 91,000-member Northeast farm cooperative must do to position itself to compete more effectively the rest of this decade and into the next century.

"Many changes are taking place on Northeast farms, in rural communities, and in the businesses serving farmers and other rural customers. Fewer farmers each year are working larger farms with bigger herds, and they require more specialized and technical ser-

Boyd Cook

"All processors are willing to pay a fair and reasonable price for Class I milk to keep local farmers in business, but they must be assured they are not put into an unfair competitive situation by having competitors purchase their milk supply at a lower price," he warned. "MACMMA can currently go a long way toward this guarantee, but small blocks of unregulated, non-co-op member milk can, and is, playing havoc with MACMMA's ability to generate fair prices."

Mary and Kenlin Martin, Smithsburg, Maryland, have been selected as the Middle Atlantic Division's 1992-93 Young Dairymen couple and will represent the division at corporate Young Dairymen activities.

The Martins milk 55 registered Holsteins, with a herd average of 22,900 milk. Merchandising plays a large role in their farm business, including embryo transplant sales and participation in regional shows and sales. Mary and Kenlin have three children and the family is active in agriculture, community and church leadership.

Seven electees were ratified by the membership to serve on the division's board of directors. Elected were B. David Patrick, Woodbine, Maryland, District 2; Myron L. Wilhide, Detour, Maryland, District 3; Robert L. Grove, Greencastle and Terry Martin, District 8; Crawford R. Galt, Chestertown, Maryland, District 9; H. Bailey Herring, Farmington, District 11; and Leon Kline, Newmantown, District 14.

Three retiring directors were recognized for their service on the division board. Retiring from the board are Claude Cooper, New Freedom, District 7; Marlin E. Martin, Smithsburg, Maryland, District 12; and Gene Kilby, Peach Bottom, District 14.

vice than in the past," Saul said. "These farmers must produce efficiently and competitively. They told Agway they want us to be able to serve their future needs and wants."

"We initiated 'Customer Driven: 1995...Focusing on the 21st Century' in February as a major study to look at the businesses we are in...analyze the trends and the potential for us and the large specialized competition moving into many of these rural markets that we serve," Saul said. "We have developed new strategies to play to our marketing advantages in order to provide better service to farmers and our other customers in these changing markets."

Saul said Agway is placing major emphasis on its three core businesses: agricultural supplies, consumer retailing, through its store and franchised representative system, and energy products and services.

In its agriculture business, Saul reported Agway is rolling out a new program, providing the feed and crop needs of farmers through customer service centers and direct delivery and billing of products used on the farm.

"We are giving our farm sales force additional technical training to help them better serve their farm customers," he said.

"On the consumer retail side, our stores and most franchised representatives are concentrating on farm-related products, yard and garden items, and pet food and supplies," Saul said.

Saul reported that Agway's energy business will be allocating resources in those markets where its people can provide superior service in a profitable manner. This may mean withdrawing from some markets and expanding in others, he said.

Saul reported that the cooperative's operating results show consolidated sales and revenues of $3.3 billion, down about $133 million from last year. Most of the decline was in the energy business due to the dramatic decline in prices from the Persian Gulf Crisis levels.

However, Saul said that Agway Country Foods set an all-time high in earnings for the fourth year in a row. Agway manufactures and markets pet and bird foods, as well as, several other natural state human foods such as dried beans, sunflower seeds, potatoes, and onions.

"We have previously announced that we included a $75 million restructuring charge against our 1991-92 operations. This recognizes the costs associated with our plans to realign Agway based on our Customer Driven: 1995 plans and objectives," Saul said. "Incorporating this restructuring charge into our

Ringler Steps Down, Thanks Grange

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff
WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — William Ringler said serving as master of the Pennsylvania State Grange for the past four years has been one of the most rewarding experiences of his life and has helped reaffirm his belief in the goals of the organization — that family is the foundation of civilization, and that it is better to be right than win.

Ringler stepped down Monday during a farewell address at the Scottish Rite Consistory in Williamsport before more than 600 Grange members who attended the group's annual convention, its 120th.

On Thursday, Ringler had time to reflect a little more during a telephone conversation.

"Our travels over the past four years have taken us about 120,000 miles, so we pretty much crossed the state north, south east and west. That was one of the nicest things about being the head of State Grange, getting to meet many people," he said.

"I have found it almost impossible to properly thank the people who have served the organization both at my direction and both at the direction of the delegation that was set in. How do you thank people who have given time, money and themselves, not for their immediate personal benefit, but for the benefit of others, so that cumulatively, each of us will have the kind of lifestyle that will be of benefit to each one of us."

According to Ringler, the strength and longevity of the Grange comes from its precepts that all members are equally important and from an ethic based strongly on the Judeo-Christian admonition to love and treat others as one would wish to be loved and treated.

"One of the founding pillars of our organization was the belief that the family was the cornerstone of civilization — as the family goes, that is the way the nation will go.

"As a consequence, there has always been a very personal relationship among Grange members. Not that we partition ourselves from others, but we love our neighbors as ourselves."

Ringler said he joined the Grange and supports it not necessarily because of its age, but because it was the original group working to sustain family values in rural Pennsylvania. He said it was and continues to be one of the most influential organizations for agriculture and rural communities.

"My life and experience of 47 years as a farmer so we had a lot of practical experience in production agriculture. As master of state Grange, we had a complete turnaround in views — no longer just production ag, but we got to see and participate in the marketing aspects, the political aspects and most importantly in the aspect that the Grange is particularly interested in the moral aspect of, not only business, but the political world."

However, Ringler, a Somerset County potato and dairy farmer of 47 years, said he felt he didn't accomplish his goals while in office.

"Our farming experience was a relatively satisfactory one, not one without pitfalls, but overall a very rewarding experience."

"My experience as Grange master has been very satisfactory as far as relationships with people. However, I was not able to do the job that I should have done for the organization."

"I entered without ego and personal gain. That's the way I should leave it, but I should have been spreading the Ag gospel more — that we have agriculture that is second to none. But I have not done a good enough job of selling," he said.

Ringler said he plans to return to his home, located on a subplot of the family farm which his son James Ringler bought and expanded.

He will not rest, he said, but intends to help his son with running the farm.

Ringler said he will remain active, because, "If I don't have a reason to put my boots on in the morning, I'm done."

However, he said he would like people to keep certain things in perspective.

He said that despite some of the disappointing things in life, his has been one of miracles and he has no reason to believe that there will be no more.

"Of course we've lived over three score and ten and I would like to tell you that this was the golden age of America."

"Not to negate the things to come, but (in his life) we came from (using) animal power, to mechanical power, to chemical power and now we're going to genetic restructuring. How many people have seen that happen, not only in their life, but in three score and ten?"

Ringler said he believes the future holds many more changes and hope for better living (though not necessarily materially).

And over all this time of change, agriculture in Pennsylvania continues to lead all other industries in importance to the economy, he said.

"Pennsylvania was the number one industry when it first became established as a commonwealth. Between 80 to 90 percent of the people were involved. It was number one then because of the number of people involved."

"Now it is number one because of efficiency. But now the number of people involved is only a little more than one percent."

Ringler said that this is a concern of the Grange whose membership fairly well represents the age demographics of the agricultural community as a whole — a lack of young people involved.

But he quickly added that the Grange was attempting to do something about it, seeking ways to attract younger members in order to keep the organization strong.

"There was a time, of course, when the church set the social life. Then the schools became more intense, and no longer were social activities centered on the church. The emphasis no longer lent itself to family activities," he said, pausing to let it sink in.

"I think as an organization, the thing that needs to be stressed is that people have to realize where the true value of life lies and what actually is the worth of those things we are working for."

"If the aim is for those things high and lofty — as spelled out in the holy writ — then that will be to our satisfaction. "I think the future hope of a nation rests upon the recognition of one's obligation to one's maker and obligations to neighbors. If a person will have respect for those entities first, then he will have respect for himself."

expenses resulted in a net loss of $58.8 million for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1992."

"We have made provisions for utilizing our assets more productively to meet the needs of the new structure we have developed. This charge also makes provision for discontinued product lines, selling off excess inventories, buildings, and other assets not needed as we look to the future," Saul said.

A significant portion of the restructuring charge relates to Agway's work-force. Saul reported that 439 employees, out of a possible 828 who were eligible for early retirement, accepted an enhanced voluntary early retirement program.

"A restructuring charge helps identify what needs to be changed and puts a dollar value on it so we can concentrate on the future rather than the past. Agway is in a position to absorb the impact while maintaining an equity of $190 million at year-end," Saul said.

Saul reported that Agway investors collected over $35 million in interest and dividends during the year, up $3 million from the previous year.

Saul state that, while it was a disappointing year for some Agway businesses, it was a good year in terms of positioning the farmer-owned cooperative for the future. He believes the new Agway mission describes what the cooperative will become in the current year and beyond. It reads "to be a customer driven and financially successful cooperative that is highly effective in meeting the needs and interests of commercial farms and other agriculturally related markets."

"We are well on our way toward implementing the changes that will achieve our goals," Saul said.

Dairylea Reports Good Year, Increase In Milk Supply

Smith and an annual address by Dairylea President Clyde Rutherford.

During a family banquet held in conjunction with the meeting, individual members were recognized for their achievements.

During his meeting address, Smith said that Dairylea continued to pay a competitive price to dairy farmer members during a year of progress for the cooperative. Milk sales, Smith said, increased by more than $21 million, or 7.5 percent, over 1991. Additionally, member milk volume grew almost 20 percent, far outstripping regional and national trends, according to Smith.

The cooperative had an annual profit of $1.5 million, according to Smith. A patronage dividend was paid to members representing a 13-percent cash return on member investment.

Other positive financial indicators reported by Smith included that tax-paid retained earnings increased to $1.6 million; working capital increased to more than $5 million; and debt-to-equity ratios improved substantially.

Additionally, Dairylea redeemed early almost $5 million of member certificates of investments.

Additionally, Smith said Dairylea's services and programs experienced greater participation and usage by dairy farmer members.

Among Dairylea's programs and services are milk check direct deposit; health insurance coverages; Farmer Flex, a flexible benefits program that allows members to pay health, dental, vision, and childcare expenses with pre-tax dollars; a member loan program; a computer database for member access; and leadership and farm family programs.

Smith also said that Dairylea made it a priority to assist members in producing high quality raw milk.

In meeting this goal, Dairylea field personnel made 16,000 field calls during the year to help members with quality issues, and the cooperative provided financial incentives to members to use the services of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA), mastitis control programs, and the PRO-DAIRY farm management program, among others.

Complementing these was the creation of a referral network of "resource cells" throughout the milkshed to help Dairylea respond to member problems promptly, effectively, and cost-effectively.

"We are seeking out veterinarians, nutritionists, agronomists, financial service professionals, and the like, to help us help our members," Smith said.

In his address, Rutherford discussed what he called, "The New Breed of Cooperatives." He said these co-ops are progressive-minded and willing to challenge long-held ideas and practices.

"As president of Dairylea, I am proud to count our organization among them," he said.

A highlight of Rutherford's presentation was the announcement of the formation of "Dairylea 2000," a task force of Dairylea members charged with helping prepare the cooperative for the challenges and opportunities of the next century.

"Dairylea 2000," according to Rutherford, will serve in an advisory capacity, providing the board of directors and management with insight and direction on issues crucial to the cooperative and its members.

"We will rely on the task force to function like a think tank and be a sounding board for the cooperative to receive feedback on how we are responding to the needs of our members, our customers and the general public," Rutherford said.

The task force, comprised of 14 farmer members, is to examine how Dairylea can have the greatest positive impact on the individual operations of each cooperative member, Rutherford said.

Emerging technologies, biotechnology, information resources, waste management, environmental concerns, new disease treatments, and animal welfare are among the numerous topics the task force is to address.

During the meeting, members and guests had the opportunity to attend several information sessions. Included were "Farm Safety: First on the Scene of an Accident," "Somatic Cell Counts: Where Are You Heading?," "Developments in Washington: Legislators Need Your Views," and "Transition on the Farm: Estate Planning and Asset Transfer."

Additionally, award presentations to Dairylea's top quality milk producers, 50-year members, and Fred H. Sexauer Award winners were made during family banquet.

During the banquet, Mazie Damcott of Sherman, N.Y., Matthew Roe of Horseheads, N.Y., and Steven Smith of Cobleskill, N.Y., were honored as recipients of the co-op's Fred H. Sexauer Award.

The monetary award is presented annually to Dairylea youths who exhibit outstanding service, leadership and a demonstrated spirit of cooperation.

The award is in memory of Fred Saxauer, who served as president of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association (now Dairylea Cooperative) from 1928-1945.

Mazie Damcott

Damcott, the daughter of Gary and Terry DeLellis, is a senior at Sherman Central High School. Upon graduation she plans to pursue a career in biology and biotechnology.

Damcott is active in high school, and is involved in choir, band, basketball, volleyball and softball, and IMPACT, a group of students and teachers against drug abuse. Additionally, she is a member of the National Honor Society and served as freshman and junior class treasurer.

Damcott is active in Dairylea's Young Cooperator (YC) Program (for youths 12-20). She regularly attends the co-op's annual YC seminar and currently serves on the YC Executive Committee. Damcott is also active in FFA, having won several awards. Currently, she serves as New York state FFA treasurer.

Matthew Roe

Roe, the son of Rodney and Nancy Roe, attends Corning Community College. Upon completion of a two-year program, he said he plans to transfer to Cornell University's School of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

Roe is president of Dairylea's Young Cooperator Executive Committee, having been active in the group since 1989.

The youth leader is active in numerous organizations, including Chemung County 4-H and the New York State Junior Holstein Association.

He has also participated in dairy bowl competitions for several years. This year, in regional competition, he placed second in the team competition and third individually. In state competition at Cornell, he placed second in team competition and sixth individually.

At Corning Community College, Roe is a staff member of the college newspaper, and is a student government representative.

Steven Smith

Smith, the son of Richard and Deborah Smith, farms in partnership with his parents and brother on the family's 250-acre farm. Smith is a senior at Cobleskill Central High School. Upon graduating, he plans to attend college and pursue a career in the dairy industry.

Smith is active in a variety of agriculture-related organizations.

Since joining the Cobleskill Chapter of FFA in 1989, he has served as student advisor, vice president, president and sub-president.

This summer, Smith was named a state Star Farmer at the FFA state convention in Alfred, N.Y. He then represented New York, one of 15 states in this region, at the Eastern States Exposition on Sept. 19 in Springfield, Mass. Smith came away from the competition being named Regional Star Farmer, the region's highest FFA honor.

Smith also is a member of Dairylea's Young Cooperator Executive Committee and the president of his local 4-H club.

Several dairy farmers were honored as 50-year members.

Recognized were Theodore Carley of Jamesville, N.Y.; Gerald and Nellie Crosby of Carlisle, N.Y.; Donald and Hazel Crowell of South Dayton, N.Y.; John T. and Evelyn Edler of Irving, N.Y.; Winston Harris of Morris, N.Y.; Marie Schmitt of Eden, N.Y.; and Clifford and Virginia Wentzler of Muncy.

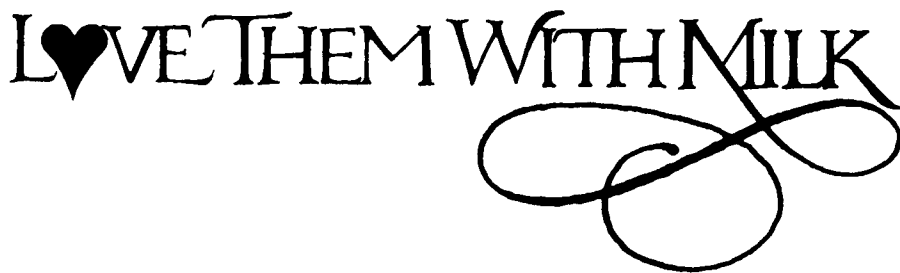

Dairy farmers Harold and Beverley Snyder of Alfred Station, N.Y., were honored as the grand winners of the co-op's Milk Quality Management Award program.

For the past nine years, Dairylea has sponsored a quality recognition program that honors cooperative producers for their outstanding achievements in producing excellent raw milk. All member farms are tested monthly on strict criteria.

This is the eighth consecutive year that the Snyders have been ranked among Dairylea's top quality milk producers. It is their second time as grand winners.

The Snyders' 300-acre Allegany County farm is home to 35 milking Holsteins.

Other milk producers honored include: Charles and Beth Bartels and family of McShoppin; Herbert and Everett Gregory of New Berlin, N.Y.; Robert and Thelma Adams of Equinunk; Richard M. Tooley of Granville, N.Y.; Charles and Eva Forgy of McVeytown; Raymond and Judy Diebold and family of Altoona; Taylor and Alan Henderson of Schaghticoke, N.Y.; Marion and Janet Rhodes and family of McVeytown; and Robert and Richard Rush of Chester, N.Y.

Farm equity is up 42 percent since 1987."

Madigan said he could not emphasize enough how the President is tuned in on ag issues. He said there was several times in the international trade talks where they could have been brought to a conclusion that would have benefited American business but would not have benefited American agriculture.

"The President promised agriculture he would get them a better deal, and we have stuck with it," Madigan said. "It's the first time in history that a president has put agriculture in the forefront of the GATT talks. My experience has been that he cares about farmers. I have not asked him to do anything for farmers that he has not agreed to do."

On environmental laws, the Secretary said he wants them based on information that is thorough and on information everyone can believe. He cited an example where figures in the clean air act were fabricated and provided false criteria for enforcement until the law was rewritten. And in another example, Madigan said only part of the spotted owl population was counted, and in fact the owls may not be an endangered species. "I don't want this kind of thing to happen with the clean water laws," Madigan said. "I want them to be based on scientific information."

Madigan said we have the safest food supply in the world, and the American people spend less of their annual income for food. He said all the people in the USDA who are appointed by the President and confirmed by Congress are constantly providing news releases, tapes, videos, and speeches in an attempt to make the public aware of this fact. "Unfortunately, a lot of times the only thing that is news is something that is going to scare somebody, and if you tell them their food is safe, that's not news," he said.

As for those who seek to reduce the size of the USDA and restructure it, Madigan said the department has already cut 15,000 employees from the payroll, and he said many of the responsibilities of USDA involve the administration of the food stamp program and other nutrition programs. In addition, 40 percent of the department is involved in the forest service. He said only 18 percent of the employees and 20 percent of the money they spend goes for production agriculture.

Madigan said that news stories that say national forests are being destroyed is not true. He said that each year more trees are planted than are harvested. One such story said national forests were being cut, when in fact the land that was being deforested did not even belong to the National Forest Service.

Madigan encouraged people to vote. "People fight and die for the right to vote," Madigan said.

"Since the President has been in office, 42 countries that had been under dictatorships have become free, and people around the world are voting for the very first time and rejoicing in the opportunity. Voting is something we should not take lightly," he said.

The stop at Hershvale was the center of a day-long tour that started at Saul High School in Philadelphia and ended at the Walter Waeber and Sons farm in Lebanon County.

Two Bulls To Test

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — Two Pennsylvania-bred bulls have recently been chosen to enter a cooperative sire sampling program.

7H4387 Dividing-Ridge Corey-Et, bred by Dean and Jeffrey Hille-gass, of Berlin, and 7H4366 Weaverline Rambo Erb-Et, owned by Weaverline Holsteins of Myersstown, were selected on the basis of pedigree. They are among 185 Holstein bulls to be entered into the testing program for 1992.

Corey is an Aerostar son from a Mark daughter that tested 4.3 percent fat and 3.4 percent protein.

The next dam is a Valiant daughter with high milk and protein production. Both dams are classified Very Good and the grandam is also a Gold Medal and Dam of Merit. Erb is a Rambo son also from a Mark daughter. His dam made more than 29,000 pounds of milk as a junior 2-year-old and was classified for type as a Very Good 88 with an Excellent mammary. The grandam is an Excellent Valiant daughter with three records at more than 30,000 pounds of milk.

The bulls are to be sampled by the Select Sires artificial insemination cooperative business.

of contests, which stretched their skills in ag salesmanship, farm management, dairy cattle judging, meats evaluation, horse judging, land judging, livestock judging, and other events. The Field Day combines several judging contests and other exercises throughout the county and surrounding counties into one event, modeled after the state contests.

"This is the first year we've done it to this magnitude with this many contests and participants at one time," said Carole Fay, Penn Manor ag science instructor and FFA advisor.

Fay helped coordinate the meats judging competition, comprised of 36 kids and two busloads which traveled to Smuckers Quality Meats in Manheim. There, the FFA'ers analyzed retail cuts and carcass quality of lamb and beef and were quizzed on various factors.

Students in the meats judging contest included FFA members from Oley Valley, Manheim, Solanco, East Lebanon, Twin Valley, and elsewhere.

In the dairy contest, FFA'ers were judged on classifying feedstuff and forage types. Also, cow's pedigree and reproductive system were analyzed.

The various schools "pulled forces" to bring the students to the event, according to Lowell Morton, FFA adviser from Annville Cleona. Another similar event is scheduled for early May of next year at the Lebanon Fairgrounds, which will include poultry and other types of livestock judging, according to Morton.

Berks Extension Honors Master Gardeners

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent
LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Joe Kuhn never thought a trip to Japan would help him attain his master gardener credits. This Lincoln Park retiree did just that on a trip last spring to Osaka where he visited his daughter.

Kuhn, along with 15 others, was named master gardener recently during the 78th annual meeting of the Penn State cooperative extension of Berks County.

While all candidates for master gardenership have to perform some kind of community service, Kuhn's was unusual.

While visiting his daughter and his 5-year-old grandson, Kuhn inevitably visited the neighborhood park. There, he wrote in an article for the extension, the play areas are maintained by the local residents.

Kuhn immediately saw that the grass around the play equipment needed trimming, the grass growing out of the sandbox needed cutting, and the trash and broken glass needed to be picked up. So he and his daughter spent several days beautifying the place.

Some of the natives watched with a puzzled eye, Kuhn said, and not many spoke English.

"We got by by smiling and bowing," Kuhn said with a laugh. "It was fun."

Most master gardener candidates don't have to travel halfway around the world to do their service projects, said Judith L. Schwank, extension director, but volunteering is part of the course, wherever it takes them.

The other master gardeners are Betty Cannell, Jane Patterson, Norman Reifsnnyder, Iris Lonker, Phyllis Lambert, Helen Coco, Maria Wesner, Oliver Schmidt, Sandra Reitz, Al Consoli, Julianne Seiz, Robert Dier, Jr., Gladys H. McGrath, Jude Thompson, Judith L. Vehse.

Kenneth E. Brandt, executive vice president of the Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals (PRUA), described how his nonprofit organization advocates treating animals humanely yet preserving the freedom to choose to use animals for food and clothing, biomedicine, recreation, and entertainment.

"This is the social issue of the '90s," he said. "and it will grow as we get into the next century."

Herb Gebely, manager of the Kutztown Produce Auction, spoke on the 3-year-old business that enables farmers to sell their products to make extra income. The auction is owned by 31 shareholders and serves more than 780 growers in Berks and nearby counties.

Also speaking were Sandy Gross, Berks County dairy princess and president of the Northern Berks 4-H Dairy Club, and Wendy Stoudt and Jane Treichler of the family living advisory committee.

Exhibits on managing household hazardous wastes, selecting Christmas trees, beef, and composting on the farm were included in the program. The Berks County 4-H Beef Club provided the hors d'oeuvres.

New extension board members elected are Carol Reed, Stella Richards, Melinda Tercha, Robert Tercha, and John Zerr.

ABS Adds 13 Pa. Bulls To Sample Lineup

DEFOREST, Wis. — A Midwestern-based artificial insemination business has announced the entry of 13 Pennsylvania Holstein bulls and one from New Jersey for progeny testing.

These 14 join more than 300 young dairy bulls being tested this year through the American Breeders Service Progeny Test Program.

The semen is to be distributed within contracted herds across the U.S. After a four-year wait, the progeny are to be evaluated and a decision made as to whether or not the bulls qualify to join the business's lineup of proven sires.

All bulls were selected based on genetic lineage and potential.

Selected for testing was 29 H7236 Singbrook Advantage, bred by Ross Snyder of Imler. Advantage is a Valiant tradition Apollo son from Singing-Brook Mark Amelia-ET, a high indexing Chief Mark daughter of the Excellent-92 Jackbuilt Chairman Mandy.

Advantage may pass on traits for outstanding udders and top production.

Also selected, H7228 Caernarvon Jordon-ET, bred by Andrew Stoltzfus of Morgantown, is a To-Mar Blackstar son from Caernarvon Cleit Jessica-ET, a young Cleitus daughter.

CJ's dam is backed by an 89-point Chief Mark dam that has an excellent mammary and high production. CJ may pass on outstanding production and exceptional type.

29 H7230 Caernarvon Settle-ET, bred by Andrew Stoltzfus of Morgantown, is a Madawaska Aerostar son from Caernarvon Secret Starie-ET, a Secret daughter with a PTAP index of +75. Settle's grandam is a high indexing daughter of Chief Mark.

Settle may help with udders and protein production.

29 H7102 Pen-Col Jitterbug-ET, bred by Pen-Col Farms of Millville, is a To-Mar Blackstar son from Nuhaben Rotate Jubilee-ET *RC, a high indexing Rotate daughter from Brooks-Meadow Bell Julie-RC. Jitterbug has a 50 percent chance of siring Red and White calves.

29 H7298 Mr. Mystycrest Pncol Cain-ET *RC, bred by Pen-Col Farms and D&D Hottenstein of Millville, is a Pen-Col Rubicund-Red-ET son from Pine-Tree Blackstar Carla-ET, a young Blackstar daughter. CAIN's dam is one of several Blackstar daughters from Echo-Glade Bell X-Mas *RC, a high producing Red and White

Bell daughter.

29 H7262 Brooks-Twain M A Patrick-ET, bred by Walter Earl Brooks of Springville, is a Madawaska Aerostar son from Pen-Col Rotate Praise, a 90-point, excellent mammary Rotate daughter. Twain's dam is backed by a high producing Bova out of an excellent Pete daughter. Twain may improve feet and legs and protein production.

29 H7217 Peticote Uranus-ET, bred by William H. Pettit Jr., of Vincentown, N.J., is a Rothrock Tradition Leadman son from Peticote Mark Ultress-ET, a young Blackstar daughter backed by Chief Mark and Bell. Uranus holds a four-generation pedigree index for TPI and protein. He may sire sound, total performance cattle.

29 H7249 Imperial-C Ldman Collin-ET, bred by Imperial C Breeders of Sagertown, is a Rothrock Tradition Leadman son from Imperial-L-C Mark Cindy-ET, a high indexed Chief Mark daughter. Collin's dam is backed by Bell and the infamous Rynd-Home Valiant Cutie. A high protein test is prevalent in Collin's maternal pedigree, and also is a distinguishing trait in the male members of this family as well.

29 H7264 Oakenbound S Spark-

ET is to enter their progeny test (PT) program in cooperation with Nor-Cal Sires. This young Holstein bull was bred by R. Troutman and Sons of Richland.

Spark is an Applenotch Rotate Rambo son from Oakenbound Tradition Fluff, a 90-point, Tradition daughter. Spark's dam traces back to the Bootmaker Fobes family, combining four generations of Very Good or Excellent dams. Spark may sire sound cattle with good udders.

29 H7282 Pen-Col Secret Star-ET, bred by Pen-Col Farms of Millville, is a To-Mar Blackstar-ET son from Mis Pen-Col Secret Dream-ET, a high producing 2-year-old. Secret Star's dam is from the Bell Dream cow family. The first three sires in his pedigree all are over 60 PTAP.

29 H7288 Pen-Col Janus, bred by Pen-Col Farms of Millville, is a Tesk-Holm Valiant Rockie son from Pen-Col Melwood Janet-ET, a high producing Melwood daughter with 3.7 percent protein production. Janus's dam is backed by a Valiant daughter. This young bull is a closely line-bred descendant of Pawnee Farm Arlinda Chief.

29 H7324 Pen-Col Emery-ET, bred by Pen-Col Farms of Millville, is a Madawaska Aerostar son from Mikal Rotate Eula-ET, an exciting young Rotate daughter that is scored Very Good-85. Emery's dam is a direct descendant of the Mikal Glendell Topsy family, the same family that has produced Tyler and Ebenezer. Emery is expected to transmit high production, good protein and superior type.

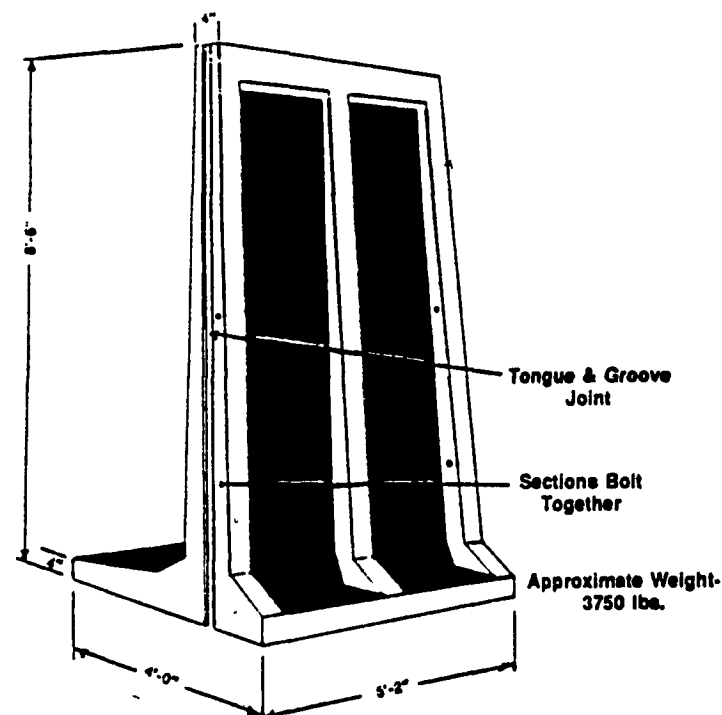

29 H7280 Moet Pen-Col A Darren-ET, bred by Genus of Brattleboro, Vt., and acquired from Pen-Col Farms of Millville, is a Madawaska Aerostar son from Mis Pen-Col Secret Dream-ET, a high producing Secret daughter. Mo's dam is from the Bell Dream cow family, a pedigree that has displayed high protein.

29 H7305 Pen-Col-H Cashmere-ET, bred by Pen-Col Farms and D & D Hottenstein of Millville, is a Rothrock Tradition Leadman son from Pine-Tree Blackstar Carla-ET, a young Blackstar daughter scoring Very Good-85 as a 2-year-old. She is from Echo-Glade Bell X-Mas *RC, a high-producing Red and White Bell daughter. Cashmere is expected to sire type improvement with good production.

Grange Honors Members

Ruth E. Osborne, Perryopolis, Pa., was named "Granger of the Year", at the Scottish Rite Consistory during the All-Granger Banquet. Osborne was honored with a plaque for her dedication to both the Grange and the community. This award is one of the highest honors bestowed upon members.

The presentation was part of the State Session where more than 500 delegates gather to discuss and vote on resolutions concerning rural and agricultural issues which will direct Grange policy for years to come.

Osborne is ending her six-year reign as Flora for State Grange. In addition to other offices held in the Grange, she is also active in Eastern Star, White Shrine, Redstone United Methodist Parish, and the Brownsville Historical Society. Offices that Osborne has held include Grand Warder of Pennsylvania in Eastern Star, Watchman of Shepherds in White Shrine, and president of United Methodist Women.

Also honored at the banquet was Rep. Sam Hayes (R - 81st

Mifflin County Farmers' Association Holds Meeting

GAIL STROCK

Mifflin Co. Correspondent

LEWISTOWN (Mifflin Co.) — The Mifflin County Farmers' Association (MCFA) annual meeting was held recently at the McVeytown Fire Hall.

After award presentations, members and guests heard the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association's (PFA) new administrative secretary, Lou Sallie, speak on the direction of PFA and goals for the organization.

The new Nationwide Insurance Program was addressed by PFA's Hadley Brown, and members voted on policy recommendations. With newly elected directors, the board then elected officers.

Sallie, in addressing the group of 60 people, took time to describe the challenges PFA faces, his role, the role of the staff, and the importance of county level membership and leadership.

"We have a challenge in this organization, and that challenge is to get more people involved. The issues today are more serious than they've ever been," Sallie said.

His emphasis is growth and positive action at the county level. "We're only successful to the extent that our members are involved."

"PFA is not the administration, it's not the state board, not the staff in Camp Hill. PFA will do, PFA will succeed, and PFA will grow to the extent that its members want it to," he said.

Sallie said the staff's role is to keep the counties better organized, better informed, and more able to be active and vocal. "Our focus at the staff level is to be closer to the counties, to better communicate with the counties, to work harder to help them to be more organized, to help them be ready to do a better job."

According to Sallie, PFA's board of directors set up a long-range planning team of members from across the state. By dividing into areas such as membership and programs, they took an in-depth look into trends within the organization. They checked data from five years back, then charted the next five years should those same trends continue.

They also conducted several "speak out" meetings across Pennsylvania for the members at large. The long-range planning team, after gathering this information, outlined 750 ideas for change for the board of directors.

The board then wrote goals and objectives. They developed 150 objectives which clearly define ways to reach the stated goals. The staff now is in the process of writing action plans to carry out the objectives.

"The most important thing is that members and leaders, and the board of directors were involved in taking a look at that and charting the course of the organization," Sallie said.

Sallie said there are more than four million members in the American Farm Bureau Federation, and his job is to get closer to those members in Pennsylvania who set policy and provide leadership.

Hadley Brown, in speaking of the PFA and Nationwide partnership, said Nationwide began as Ohio Farm Bureau Insurance in 1926, and then added Maryland Farm Bureau Insurance in 1928. After forming the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Insurance Company in the 1940s, it was renamed Nationwide in 1953.

Brown said the link with PFA now is Nationwide's chance to form agricultural ties again. Nationwide hopes to help PFA increase membership by providing insurance tailored to their members and their business needs, and have developed and are developing programs just for PFA members.

Members then discussed, voted, and adopted the following policy recommendations:

1. We support the recycling of residential septage on farmland according to the current DER guidelines.

2. We recommend that a market should be established for recyclable material before recycling is mandated upon local municipalities.

3. We recommend that the extension service and/or the v-tech school teach a farm safety course for 13-, 14-, and 15-year-old youths to meet legal requirements for farm employment.

4. We recommend attendance by Mifflin County School students to the Pennsylvania Farm Show be legally excused.

5. We recommend that PFA and the PFA State Dairy Committee continue to monitor and collect data for use in preparing testimony for over-order pricing of milk.

6. We recommend that the Game Commission accept full responsibility for all damages

Albright Continues Tradition At New Holland Show

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff
NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The Albright name has been known at New Holland Sales Stables for some time and on Wednesday Daniel Albright continued his family's support of the stable's dairy show and sale by showing the grand champion, a 4-year-old Elevator daughter.

Daniel's grandfather Alfred had showed last year's reserve grand champion, but has passed away since. This year, continuing the 20-some years of showing at the New Holland Show and Sale, Daniel's Good-plus C Olimar Sandy Kay was named top cow by judge Paul King of W. Va.

King noted the cow's straight back, length, height, feet and legs and high well-sculpted udder, as reasons for selecting Kay as the top offering for the show and sale. Albright said she was not on DHIA test, but, fresh eight days, was milking 88 pounds.

Later Kay sold for $3,000.

Gordon Wood, of Gor-Wood-D Farms, Mansfield, was showman for Albright, saying that he knew well and respected Alfred and was glad to show Kay for Daniel. "I knew his grandfather. He was a big supporter of this show," Wood said.

Taking reserve grand champion of the show was Stonehurst Farms' C Meadowmac H M Grace, born Nov. 11, 1988, and fresh Oct. 25. She had a 191-day production record, as a 3-year-old of 12,372 pounds of milk with a 4.1 percent fat and 3.3 percent protein component composition.

Grace sold for slightly more, at $3,300, to top the sale.

Dale Hostetter, showed the second place winner in the 2-year-old fresh heifer class and sold her for $3,050.

Hostetter's Stanver Mars Brandy, is an Elevation Tony daughter fresh Oct. 5, milking 71 pounds of milk.

The total amount of the sale and averages were not available from the stable by presstime.

In the mixed breed dry cow class, Fred Pottierger and Jacob Kramer showed the first place animal, which sold for $1,800; Dennis Martin shows the second place animal, sold for $1,350; and Dan Albright showed the third place animal, which sold for $1,350.

In the mixed breed fresh cow class, Dennis Martin showed the first place animal, which sold for $1,675; Lloyd Potter showed the second place animal, sold for $1,550; and Stonehurst Farm showed the third, sold for $1,425.

In the 2-year-old dry heifer class, Stonehurst Farm showed the first place animal, which sold for $2,150; Marvin Eshelman, showed the second place animal, sold for $2,900; and Albright took third, which sold for $1,625.

The first place 2-year-old fresh heifer was shown by Fred Pottierger, and sold for $1,475; the second place animal was shown by Dale Hostetter and sold for $3,050; and Pottierger showed the third place animal, selling it for $1,625.

In the 3-year-old dry heifer class, Pottierger showed the first place animal, which sold for $1,900; Pottierger and Kramer showed the second place animal, which sold for $1,725; and Dennis Martin showed the third place animal, sold for $1,400.

In the 3-year-old fresh heifer class, Charles Myers and Jacob Kramer showed the first place animal which sold for $5,600; Leroy Smucker showed the second place animal, which sold for $2,700; Stonehurst Farm sold the third place animal, which sold for $1,750.

In the mature dry cow class, Fred Pottierger, showed the first place animal, selling it for $1,500; Albright took second, selling it for $1,975; and Martin showed third, selling for $1,750.

Albright, of course showed the first place mature fresh cow and Stonehurst Farms showed second; Leroy Smucker showed the third place animal, selling it for $1,800.

To Jump-Start Milk Production, Plant Custom Farm Seed Waxy Corn Hybrids.

20 years ago, CFS introduced waxy hybrids. Today, 20 years later, CFS waxy hybrids equal ... or better ... your favorite dent in bushels per acre, standability and overall performance.

But users realize the real benefits of CFS waxy ... 100% amylopectin starch.

While dent corn is composed of 25% amylose ... the less digestible starch, CFS waxy is 100% amylopectin, and zero amylose. Starch intake is what produces milk and weight gain in livestock. It stands to reason that CFS waxy will produce more milk for dairy producers and faster weight gain for livestock producers, on less grain fed.

Penn State Block & Bridle Club Serves Up Pork At Tailgate

Brenda Horgan

Special to Lancaster Farming

Getting up extra early on a Saturday not your cup of tea? Fifteen Penn State Block and Bridle Club members weren't sure about it either, but after they crawled out of their warm beds and into the cool crisp morning, they actually warmed up to the idea and had fun!

The meeting place was 9 a.m. outside Beaver Stadium. The mission? To represent the Pennsylvania Pork Producers by serving 90 pounds of freshly barbecued, tender pork loin to Penn State football fans. Huddled around four propane grills, the students sliced, cooked, and served "the other white meat" to hungry passers-by. Sliced in pieces small enough to put a toothpick through, yet large enough for an incredibly tasty morsel, the pork bites left most tasters oohing and mming and asking for more.

Whether we were cutting up the pork loin, cooking it, or sticking toothpicks into the little morsels, we weren't bored. In fact, gathering around the sweet smell of a cookout, joking around with friends, and watching club advisors Keith Bryan and Dr. Harold Harpster and our Treasurer and Secretary, George McQuiston and Liz Preston play "Chef Boyardee" was quite amusing. My personal favorite was cutting up the pieces of pork at the serving table and putting toothpicks in them — hot off the grill — as fast as I could. This was great because when there was a slowdown in customers, we were able to sneak samples of the little delicacies into our mouths when no one was looking (or so we thought).

Our tailgate was a success. Not a single person complained about the great tasting pork, except to say they wanted more. And the fun and friends made up for lost sleep. Mission complete!

To inquire about activities or programs associated with the Penn State Block and Bridle Club, contact club advisors Harold Harpster (814) 863-0734 or Keith Bryan at (814) 863-0569.

Sale Will Show Benefits Of Raising Bison (Buffalo)

ANDY ANDREWS

Lancaster Farming Staff

DUNCANSVILLE (Blair Co.)

— Raising bison (buffalo) may require more intensive management, but they sure last long and flourish on all qualities of pasture.

With that in mind, for the second year the Pennsylvania Bison Producers will hold their annual sale at the Carson Valley Buffalo Ranch on Saturday, Nov. 7 at 1 p.m.

The bison producers organization, founded in 1990, is comprised of 40 members throughout the state, according to Richard Curry, who operates a 100-head bison farm in Duncansville.

The purpose of the sale is to "familiarize people with bison and to get herds started in the state," said Curry. Curry said buffalo are harder to raise and handle, but will do well in grazing poorer pasture. They also provide more meat per animal.

They also require about twice the time that it takes a beef animal to finish, but, for breeding purposes, many live to 25 or 30 years old.

For more information about the sale or the Pennsylvania Bison Producers, call Curry at (814) 695-0056.

INDUSTRIAL-GRADE HEAVY-DUTY PUMPS

There are many so-called air compressor builders, but E.L. Smith is one of the few cast iron compressor pumps manufactured in the U.S.A. In fact, other companies use our pumps in their compressors and products and they are ideal replacement components for most 2 cylinder wheelbarrow compressors

E.L. Smith compressor pumps are designed and built to stand up to a long life of rigorous use. A large cylinder bore enables the compressor to run at lower rpm; this reduces heat build-up, lessens wear and greatly extends operating life.

THINKING OF REMODELING?

MUCH HAS CHANGED IN THE POULTRY INDUSTRY DURING THE LAST TEN YEARS

■ FOUR HIGH, 20" DEEP CAGE SYSTEMS

CHORE-TIME

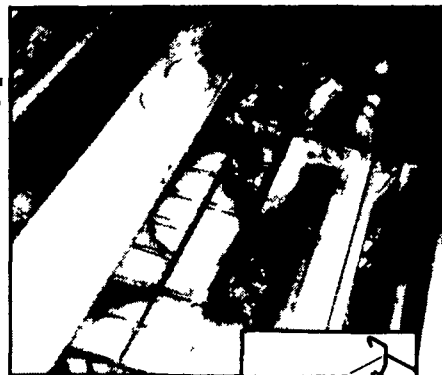

FOUR HIGH DURATRIM

The same width as 3 high dropping board systems and 4 high reverse cage systems and INCREASES CAPACITY BY 33%

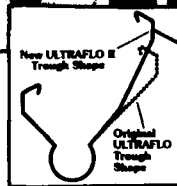

■ CHORE-TIME

ULTRAFLO™ FEEDING

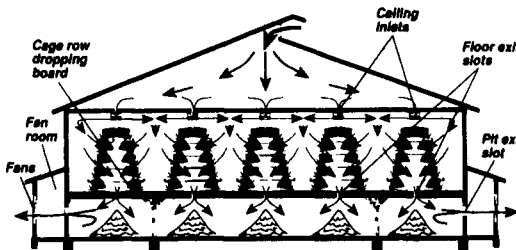

Lower maintenance, better feed conversion and performance for layers, pullets and breeders.

New Shape
The difference is the shape of the feeder's trough (at right) ULTRAFLO II's higher trough lip reduces feed waste by keeping it in the trough and not on the floor or in the pit.

■ CHORE-TIME VENTILATION Negative Pressure House

TURBO ventilation provides year round, even temperatures, end to end - side to side - tier to tier and at the same time dries manure to a dusty - fly resistant - product!

■ CHORE-TIME H2 and C2 FEEDERS

Feeders for broilers and poults...Grilled or Grilless - The Feeders with Windows!

ALSO: ■ Automatic nests for broiler breeders and commercial breeders

■ Nipple drinkers and cup drinkers for broilers and breeders

■ Electronic ventilation controls which are easy to install, easy to operate and pay back in fuel savings and productivity

Back-To-The-Land Movement Not Dead

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent
SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) —

It took a winter storm blast that dropped forty-plus inches of snow on Somerset County and knocked out electrical power for one week to convince Arthur and Maxine Cook not to depend on outside sources of energy for their survival on this earth.

Not long after their marriage in 1969, the Cooks, then highly successful Pittsburgers, purchased a run-down farm in Somerset County. A couple of years later, they left a beautiful home in the exclusive Fox Chapel suburb and moved onto the farm which was, as Arthur recalls, "a shambles."

"We were part of the back to the land movement," he grins. He says they adopted Somerset County as their home and exchanged their urban lifestyle for one they felt would bring them more happiness.

The next year's winter storm found them huddling with their pets in the minus-degrees, 1870 farmhouse. There was no electricity for generating light, heat or water, neither for themselves or some 30-head of Angus beef cattle.

"We realized our own vulnerability," said Arthur. "When we put all our eggs in one basket. One should not depend on others for their care," he said. "We later considered it (the experience) a gift from God because we woke up and changed our priorities."

He says a single generator would have sufficed but they wanted to get back to nature.

Now, he says that by using the wind and the sun, which are considered solar energy, all of their necessities and some of their luxuries are supplied by these natural energy sources.

The Cooks have two windmills, one is older and the other is absolute state-of-the-art modern, says Cook. For harnessing the sun's energy, they have installed some 40 photovoltaic modules (solar panels) at five graduated levels of eight each. Depending on weather conditions these supply up to 95 percent of the energy needs on the 70-acre, share-cropped-farm that's cultivated by a neighbor.

Cook says that everything is not yet on the system. He began working on it in 1978 and through the years has been adding to it. The household heat comes from wood with oil backup. When temperatures are very cold, they might use 40 to 50 gallons of oil during the year.

One windmill pumps the gravity-flow water from a 173-foot well high above the house. The water is stored in an underground, 2,000 gallon reservoir.

The other windmill generates electricity. The modern solar appliance, which should withstand 160 mile-per-hour winds, was built by Northern Power Systems in Vermont. Cook, a stickler for quality, is also a dealer for the windmill and does his own maintenance. This means climbing the towers, cleaning and oiling the pertinent mechanisms a couple of times each year. Timewise, an hour annually.

Cook can get pretty technical about the system. He says the solar cells convert light into electrical current. The system is 2,500 watt and 120 volt direct current which is stored in 40 deep-cycle batteries. The capacity is 420 amperes of power. Some is used as direct and some, as alternative current.

"I don't like to buy appliances every 20 years," says Cook. "I like things that last." So he has a six-burner stainless steel, commercial range in the kitchen. The energy for it comes from a propane gas tank. On the other side of the room, standing side by side, is the commercial stainless steel refrigerator and freezer. Cook bought the boxes and compressors and experimented with operating efficiency until he was satisfied with their performance.

Overhead are compact fluorescent lights which he says use one-fourth of the energy used by other light bulbs.

"I'm in that group of people who believe in living in harmony with God's earth," says Cook, "the way our Divine Father meant us to live."

He says, "I try to buy American products, but when that product is inferior, I will not buy it." So the solar panels are Japanese-made. "They will last 100 years," he stated.

He believes that solar expansion would create countless jobs. Not only would the United States economy benefit, but the energy savings and improved health of people in general would be immeasurable.

"The bottom line is these costs are actually much higher than the cents shown on bills 'till you add medical costs and so forth," he said. "People are seduced by a lack of knowledge."

So convinced is Cook about using nature as an alternative energy source that he says he will debate the issue with anybody. "It's cheaper to conserve than to produce energy," he said. Thousands of dollars can be saved he says if folks would just pay attention to efficiency of those things in their home that are energy-consumers.

It's a continual job for Cook who is always rewiring and altering to make things function more efficiently. His wish, he says is to help others understand it can be done.

Now the housekeeper, chef and bottle-washer while his wife manages an orthopedic office, Cook admits his initial financial investments have been large. But he says he knows he is doing what is right. There are returns and rewards in that very knowledge. And much of the stuff has already paid for itself in energy cost savings since 1978.

Arthur and Maxine are the fourth owners of the farm. They have restored the house and barn to breathtaking rural beauty in its prominent setting among the tranquil, green hillsides, some two miles off Route 31 west. Horses graze peacefully and a nearby wagon loaded with hay sits idle.

Three German Shephard dogs of huge dimensions that appear fierce, but are friendly as all get out, exhibit jealousy when denied their part in Arthur's interview. They keep returning to the door to peer inside and howl mournfully when reentry is disallowed. explains. Two other pets are showy macaw parrots. "Those are our children," Cook

Homestead Notes

Arthur Cook believes in efficient appliances. This stainless steel refrigerator and freezer resulted from his purchasing the boxes and compressors separately, then experimenting for their efficient performance.

Silicon cells in the solar panels convert the sun's energy into electric power at Arthur and Maxine Cook's Somerset area farm.

OUR MAN FOR PRESIDENT

Why George Bush must win

I'm just a country boy from Lebanon county. A hog farmer and farm equipment dealer. But this is from my heart.

My family rejoiced when the Berlin Wall went down, and the Soviet Union disintegrated before our eyes.

It was the greatest story of the century. Not a shot fired. Or young soldier maimed. And Mr. Bush lead the way.

Now people are saying world peace is not good enough. We need change.

Hey, wait a minute. My boys aren't going to war. There's no threat of nuclear attack hanging over our heads.

"Yeah but 7.6% are unemployed, housing starts are limping along, car sales are soft", the Clinton bunch hollers.

Sure but let's be honest this once. We live in a global economy. Japan, Germany, Italy, France and Great Britain also face economic hard times. It's all part of this adjustment from war to peace.

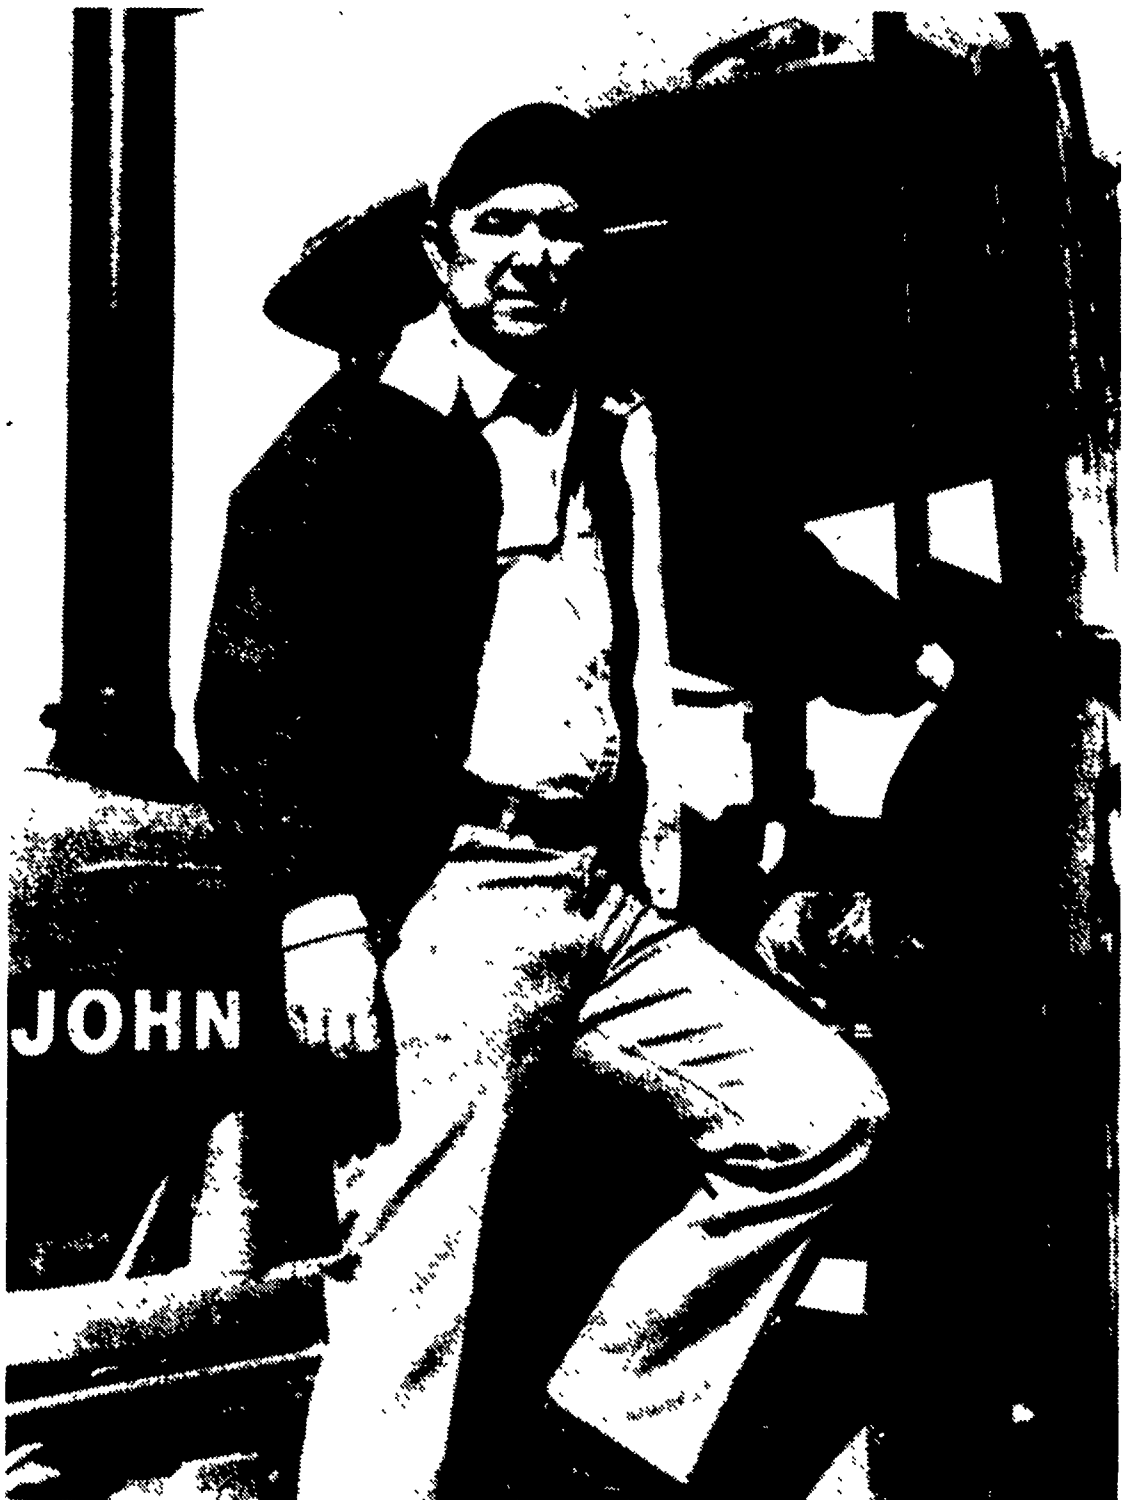

And whether the New York Times or Harrisburg Patriot like it or not, it's going to take world leaders to apply the bandaids. Men like President George Bush.

We have an experienced team in the White House to do the job. Keep'em.

REMOVE STAINS BEFORE STORING CLOTHING

Fall has arrived and it is time to think about putting away your family's summer clothing. Remember that it is important that stains be removed from fabrics before storage so that fabric damage can be prevented.

Insect larvae from moths, cockroaches, beetles, silverfish, and others, feed on the fiber of spots and stains. The insect larvae can also cut or weaken the fibers and fabric, causing holes.

The fiber most susceptible to attack by insect larvae is wool. However, any fiber can be damaged if the article is stored while it is still stained.

Stains can also cause chemical damage and/or color changes on fabrics. Substances such as sodas, fruit juices, and alcoholic beverages are acidic and can cause fibers to weaken and deteriorate if they are allowed to remain on the fabric. The acidity of these substances can also cause reactions with the colors in the fabric, causing color changes. In many cases, the damage is not readily apparent until the agitation of cleaning causes the weakened fibers to be removed. Also, the heat of cleaning accelerated the reaction of the staining substance with the dye or coloring matter to form the color change.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure! Launder or have your garments dry-cleaned before you store them. Dry-cleaning will kill insect larvae, but it will not prevent reinfestation. There are moth repellent finishes that can be applied in dry-cleaning, but very few cleaners perform this service. Storing articles with moth balls or cedar wood will also deter insects, but will not kill them. Stains should be removed so that insect damage, chemical damage, and color changes do not "miraculously" appear when articles are taken out for another season. Prevention is the key; for once these damages occur, in most cases, there is no cure.

ENZYMES HELP REMOVE STAINS

In the past people found that spitting on certain kinds of stains would help to remove them from clothing. The belief that this helped to take out milk stains, blood stains, and other types of stains was held by many people, including those in the garment care industry.

This sounds dirty and unappealing in today's antiseptic society. Who wants to think someone is out there spitting on their Sunday best? But it worked... why?

Saliva contains enzymes which help break up some stains through a digestive process, so they can be rinsed away — just as the saliva in

What To Do If You're Having Trouble Paying Bills

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you're one of the thousands of Americans who have recently lost their jobs, or had your hours cut back, chances are the last thing you want to think about is your bills. But for the sake of your financial future, bills should be one of your first concerns.

"People who are experiencing financial difficulty often want to just put the bills out of sight and try to forget about them. When the creditors call, they don't want to talk to them," says Debra Bryant, Wayne County Extension Director, with Penn State Cooperative Extension. "Unfortunately, that's the worst thing you can do if it happens to you."

Instead, you should contact the people and companies you owe as soon as possible once you realize you can't make your payments. Although it's best to meet with them in person, a phone call or letter will do.

When you call or write give your creditors the following information:

- Reason why you having trouble paying your bills. Just tell them the truth, don't exaggerate or try to make things sound worse.
- Your income and expenses. Make a list of your current monthly income, (the money you get each month) that means money from your job, unemployment checks, child support checks, al-mony, or any other money you get. Then write down your expenses — everything from your rent or mortgage payments to movie tickets and the coffee you buy at the local convenience store.

• A list of your debts. To determine how much you own, gather your bills for the past month and list the following information for each one: the name of the creditor, the total balance due, payment due date, minimum monthly payment due, and the last date you made a payment.

With this information, creditors may be able to help you work out a payment plan. Some creditors will be willing to take less money each month and give you more time to pay off your bills.

"Most creditors want to work with you," says Bryant. "But their past experiences with you will influence their attitude. If you've paid your bills on time, your creditors will be more cooperative than if you were late or did not make regular payments in the past."

Some bills are more important than others. So if you can't pay all of them, you'll have to set priorities.

"The most important thing is to make sure to meet the food, health, clothing and housing needs of your family," says Bryant. "But don't ignore the consequences of not paying your other bills. When deciding what debts to pay first, consider what will happen if you don't pay."

Ask yourself these questions when setting payment priorities:

- Will your utilities be disconnected, or will you be evicted?
- What legal action can be taken? If you do not want your wages garnished or the item repossessed, pay the debt back as soon as possible.

• What is the "secured" status of the loan? If the loan was cosigned or secured by collateral, make it a high priority payment. If you don't, the cosigner will have to pay or you may lose your property. (Secured loans are made by pledging personal assets, like your house, car or furniture, or by cosigning with another person.)

• Is there a plenty charge for late payment?

• Will the remaining balance need to be paid in full if you miss a payment?

• Will you be harassed by the creditor? Contrary to popular belief, harassment by a creditor is NOT illegal, although harassment by a third party (a bill collector) hired by the creditor is.

Although you may be tempted, Bryant cautions against making promises you know you can't keep. Be honest about what you can pay. It is most important that you make the lower payments on time.

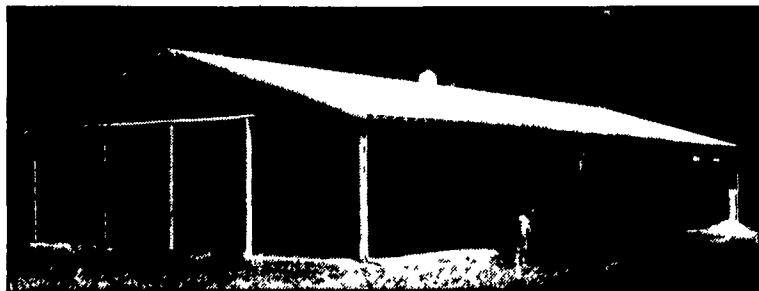

"If you default again, creditors won't trust you," she says and they won't be willing to work with you.

For more information, contact your local Penn State Cooperative Extension office for free information on managing your money or contact Debra Bryant at the Wayne County Extension office 717-253-5970 ext. 239.

Vote for a working senator

ARLEN SPECTER

HE GETS THE JOB DONE

Sure we're voting for Arlen Specter November 3rd.

No airs or frills about Arlen Specter. He's a no nonsense guy who has stood with Pennsylvania farmers in every major battle and crisis the past 12 years.

In fact, he is the only member of the Pennsylvania congressional delegation to serve on a committee or subcommittee that deals with agriculture policy and budgets.

Specter has clout

And Specter has the seniority and clout in the U.S. Senate to continue the good fight. For Pennsylvania farmers. For all Pennsylvanians.

That's how it works in the U.S. Senate. Elect his opponent and she will end up at the bottom of the seniority list with little if any voice in pending legislation.

Worried about the deficit? Specter supports a balanced budget and line item veto to control runaway spending in Washington. Democrats voted "no".

Concerned about the stagnant economy? Specter is fighting for tax cut on capital gains as one step to stimulate the economy and create new jobs.

How about federal estate taxes? They prevent many farmers from passing along the farm to their children. Specter wants reform. Now.

Specter cares

What's the best reason for voting for Specter? He cares.

When Avian flu hit Pennsylvania flocks, Specter was there to win compensation for farmers.

When milk prices fell through the floor recently, Specter was there with legislation to help stabilize milk markets and increase prices.

When drought scorched Pennsylvania crops, Specter was in the field to monitor drought assistance.

When wetlands extremists tried to stiffarm private property rights of farmers, Specter joined the fray on our side.

When ag research and rural programs lagged in the 80s, it was Specter who found extra money in the federal budget.

And the list goes on.

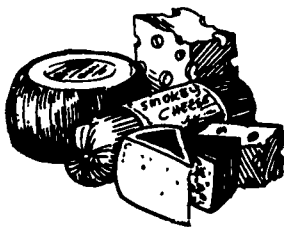

Can we expect more of the same in the next six years?

Absolutely!!

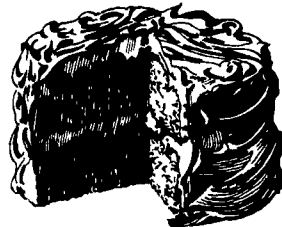

Vote right November 3rd.
Vote for Arlen Specter.

Celebrate National Cheese Month

While the specific nutrient content of a cheese can vary, cheeses are complete "nutrient dense" foods that offer plenty of calcium, phosphorus, protein, and riboflavin.

It takes about 5 quarts milk to make one pound of cheese, on an average basis. As for the fat issue, the dairy industry has responded to consumer concerns with many reduced-fat cheese products. From American to Cheddar, these cheeses offer a similar flavor to the more traditional cheeses. And, the removal of fat does not reduce the nutritional value. These cheeses still contain high levels of calcium and protein, as well as other nutrients. Cottage cheese and part-skim mozzarellas are naturally low-fat cheeses.

Much of the texture and flavor in cheese is due to the fat content of the cheese. Any changes in fat content can affect the cooking characteristics of a cheese. So, when you are preparing a dish using a reduced-fat cheese, be aware that traditional flavor and taste may be altered somewhat.

For the celebration of Cheese Month, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program has released to consumers a "Reduced-Calorie Dairy Recipe" brochure. The brochure includes a wide variety of recipes using all types of dairy products. And, consumers will find several tips for low-fat "dairy cooking." Dairy foods offer plenty of nutritional value and are a part of any balanced diet.

Several of the recipes are home-made creations from the kitchens of Pennsylvania consumers. The "life Lasagna-Wrapped Salad" and "Rolled Stuffed Sole" were winners in two of the PDPP's low-fat recipe contests. The brochure also features recipes for desserts, beverages, and a special "Potato-Bacon Soup." All of these contain less than 480 calories per serving, along with the nutrition from several dairy products.

The free recipe brochures are available to consumers. Interested parties should send a self addressed and stamped, legal-size envelope to: "Reduced Calorie Dairy Recipes," Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110. A sampling of the brochure's recipe's follows.

Rolled Stuffed Sole

2 cups low-fat Cottage cheese
1 (7 oz.) can crabmeat, drained

4 mushroom caps
2 Tablespoons chopped mushrooms
1 Tablespoon chopped onion
3 Tablespoons dry white wine
½ cup skimmed milk
1 teaspoon cream of tarter
½ teaspoon lemon juice sufficient paprika to sprinkle over dish

On each fillet, place one tablespoon cottage cheese, 1½ ounces crabmeat, a sprinkle of basil, and a mushroom cap. Roll up fillet and place seam side down in a baking dish. On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

The end is near.

No, no, no... make that! The end is HERE.

The "end" came nearly two weeks ago, as our hilly, southern York County farm country lay hidden in early morning darkness.

The end crept in under a clear, crisp, star-speckled sky, silently wreaking its devastation while we slumbered, snugly-warm under the electric blanket. But, by dawn's pale light, signs of the end's arrival were already visible.

A film of white coated much of the landscape, curled over each round bale stacked in the meadow, poked icy-crisp fingers into the perennial border and painted streaked stripes across the back lawn. The finality of it all was written in shimmery ice covering each water bucket at the outside calf pens.

Not that the end was unexpected.

Just the day before, I'd washed the last downstairs window, hoisted the screens up into place and lowered the storm glass section. In the process, several dozen spiders had lost their homes, a couple of dead ex-houseplants were recycled to the compost pile and the ruffled curtains got a much-needed appointment with the washing machine.

When the end appears to be so near, one hastens to clean up her act.

Even the annual "transfer the greenery to the indoor scenery" move was completed.

A thriving variegated spider plant colony from the basement porch planter had been dispersed into numerous individual pots for sharing and the church bazaar. The front porch Boston fern had converted to living room status while its brother from the patio took up condo life in the greenhouse.

Assorted other plants mixed and mingled on the sills of the newly-washed windows, angel-wing begonias, various ivy species, African violets, jade and snake plants. A vaseful of late snapdragon blooms filled the window behind the kitchen sink, glowing with shades of rosy pink, soft yellow and deep maroon. Keeping them company was the final small bouquet of bright-hued zinnias.

In anticipation of the imminent coming of the end, I'd bundled up after dark the evening before into quilted flannel shirt, hat, gloves to tuck under cover some special warm-weather-worshippers.

A few long-keeper tomatoes remained in the garden, close enough to pinkish-orange maturity to be given a hand toward stretching the season just a bit longer. And the outside planter lush with the fat, pink blooms of geraniums was just too pretty to reduce yet to cuttings for the greenhouse.

Over the tomatoes and geraniums went multi-layered sections of the frost-cover fabric that had saved the strawberry patch from late spring frost last May. Frost-cover fabric is probably one of the best gardening purchases I've ever made and my fifty feet of it should be good for several years use. Unless the heifer heard escapes some night it's spread across the garden and gets curious.

Just before returning to the warmth of the woodstove, a memory spurt flashed on with a reminder that four pots of kalanchoes still sat at risk on the side outside steps. In the dark, I hopped up the railroad-trestle beams set as bank retainers, grabbed two of the pots, stepped down to return the same way - and promptly set my foot down in a black plastic bucket filled with rainwater. Cold rainwater.

Some of us get careless when the end is near.

But no amount of covering, of hurrying, of moving things about could stop the temperature's plummet to below the critical freeze point - bringing this year's

Learn And Earn Training Sessions To Be Held

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)

One-day training sessions for the 4-H Learn and Earn for Fun and Profit Program will be held from 10 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., at the Capital and Southeast Region, Wednesday, December 16, Berks County Agricultural Center. Extension agents and anyone interested in becoming an adult volunteer are encouraged to attend.

The first of its kind in Pennsylvania, the program takes youth ages 12 through 18 each step of starting and running a business. It covers choosing a business, writing a business plan, starting operations, making financial decisions, advertising, monitoring growth, and speaking at public meetings.

Since the program began in 1990, youths in (10) counties have participated. "These young people have developed leadership and organizational skills that will be tremendous assets when they begin seeking jobs," says Dr. Alan Snider, professor of agricultural growing season to the end. Though several dozen acres of late soybeans were lost through the neighborhood, including a few of our own, no one seems to mind much after a much more bountiful crop year.

The end is here. But next spring's barley crop is already growing nicely, fruit trees buds are already set and the spring seed corn will be ordered shortly.

The end is here. And it merely turns out to be another beginning.

and extension education in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Now we would like to make the program available in all counties."

The training sessions will provide an overview of the program and explain how it addresses young people's needs. Sessions will include information on getting a group started, establishing and leading an advisory committee and recruiting and training adult leaders. Also covered will be resources for agents and volunteers, and examples of what some of the youth groups have accomplished.

There is no charge for the workshop, and volunteers' lunches will be paid for by a grant from the Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H. For more information, contact Helen Riley, Extension Agent at the Penn State Extension Office, 1451 Peters Mountain Road, Dauphin, PA 17018, (717)921-8803, or contact Alan Snider, Agricultural and Extension Education, 323 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814)863-2695.

Traveling Tip

When packing your bag for a trip, remember to take along some plastic bags to hold your soiled laundry while traveling. This helps keep dirty clothing separate from clean clothing. At the end of the trip, just empty the bags right into the washing machine.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted to know how to use dried tomatoes and where to buy them, Sue Stockdale, Seisholtzville, wrote that they can be purchased from Timber Crest Farms, 4191 Dry Creek Road, Healdsburg, CA 95448 or phone (717) 433-8251. Here is a recipe that she enjoys.

Dried Tomato Chicken Salad

Mix chunks of cooked chicken or turkey with snipped rehydrated dried tomatoes, chopped red onion, chopped basil, chopped toasted nuts, and just enough mayonnaise to moisten. Serve on lettuce or on whole-grain bread sandwiches.

ANSWER — Hattie Deihl, Mifflinburg, requested a recipe for funnel cakes. Thanks to Anna Joyce Martin, East Earl, and to Dotty Kleinendorst, Hop Bottom, for sending recipes.

Funnel Cakes

Combine:

- 1 pint milk
- Pinch of salt
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- 2 beaten eggs

Enough flour to make a thin batter. Place enough lard or cooking oil in iron skillet to cover about 1-inch of dough. Heat the lard. Pour the dough through a funnel, beginning at the center of the skillet and gradually pouring the dough outward in a circular manner. (Do not allow the dough to overlap previous poured batter). When the funnel cakes are light brown, remove from the skillet and serve with maple syrup, a tart jelly or simply sprinkle them with confectioners' sugar.

Funnel Cakes

- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1½ cups milk
- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups oil
- Confectioners' sugar

In large mixing bowl, combine eggs and milk. In separate bowl, sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add to egg mixture; beat smooth with rotary beater. (Test mixture to see if it flows easily through funnel, if too thick, add milk; if too thin, add flour).

In 8-inch skillet, heat cooking oil to 360 degrees, covering bottom opening of funnel with finger. Pour a generous ½ cup batter into funnel. Hold the end of the funnel close to the surface of the oil. Remove finger and release batter into hot oil in a spiral shape. Fry until golden, about 3 minutes. Using wide spatula and tongs, turn cake carefully. Cook 1 minute more. Drain on paper towel. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Serve with syrup, if desired.

ANSWER — For Mrs. J.Z. Lauver who wanted recipes for a grandson who had a wheat allergy. Thanks to Mrs. Daniel C. Mopes, Mackeyville, PA 17750, who promises more information to those who request it. She writes that one should not use rye or oats unless you are sure he is not allergic to them as her son had one of his worse reactions to rye. Here are two of her recipes.

Peanut Butter Cookies

No Flour

- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 cup peanut butter, chunky works best

Mix all ingredients together. Roll mixture into small balls. Bake at 350 degrees on greased cookie sheet for 10 minutes. Makes 3 dozen.

Cornmeal Scrapple

- 1 cup white or yellow cornmeal
- 1 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2½ cups boiling water

8 ounces bulk pork sausage, cooked, drained, and crumbled

In a saucepan, combine the cornmeal, milk, sugar, and salt. Gradually stir in water. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Reduce heat and cook, covered, 10 minutes longer or until very thick, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and stir in sausage. Pour into loaf pans. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate. To serve, unmold and cut into ½ -inch slices.

ANSWER — Joan RosRos, Shavertown, wrote that she has a wonderful and easy chocolate icing that she uses for eclairs. However, it calls for a raw egg. Now that it is considered risky to eat raw eggs, she wanted to know if there is a substitute for it. Thanks to Loretta Young, Westmoreland County, for sending a recipe that doesn't require eggs and she said is very good.

Icing For Eclairs

- 2 packages ready-blend chocolate
- 2 teaspoons white corn syrup
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 3 tablespoons butter, softened
- 1½ cups confectioners' sugar
- 3 tablespoons milk

Mix together ingredients. (The ready-blend chocolate may be substituted with ½ cup chocolate chips, melted).

- 1 small onion, chopped finely
- 1 pound fake lobster meat, thawed and heated
- ¼ cup sour cream
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 teaspoon mustard
- 2 to 4 tablespoons butter
- Grated cheese
- Salt and pepper

Bake potatoes in oven or microwave until center of potatoes can be easily pierced with a fork. Cut potatoes in half and scoop out pulp with a spoon. Mash potatoes and add milk and sour cream and half of the butter. Add onion and mustard. Fold in the fake lobster meat. Fill potato skins with the mixture. Sprinkle cheese and remaining butter on top. Bake at 400 degrees until hot or heat in microwave for 5 to 6 minutes at 60 percent power until hot.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 8

Lancaster Society of Farm Women No. 8 met on October 14th at the Lutheran Church in Maytown. Members brought items for the Food Bank. Guest speaker was Tom Armstrong, State Representative, who presented a talk on farming concerns.

The November 11th meeting will be held at the Lutheran Church in Maytown and will be a covered dish luncheon at 12 Noon.

York Society 26

York County Farm Women 26 met at I-83 Restaurant at Strinestown for the October meeting. Alverna Bupp was hostess and Martha Huston was in charge of the program. Seventeen members were present.

Eight members of the group celebrated Farm Women's Day with a brunch at the Agriculture Museum in York and a tour of the museum.

Lebanon Executive Board

The Executive Board of the Lebanon Co. Farm Women met Oct. 7 at the Farm and Home Center with Fern Hitz presiding. Devotions were by Eileen Keller, Group 8. Susan Hawley, county secretary called roll and 19 group presidents and eight officers answered the question, "Did your group have a safety meeting this year?" After the secretaries report, Rosene Bollinger, treasurer, gave her report.

It was announced that Stacy Habecker and Karen Lentz were the scholarship winners this year.

Lois Bohn, first vice president, read an invitation from Green County, for the Lebanon County Farm Women to attend their county convention. She also read a "thank you" note from Karen Lentz for the scholarship she received.

Final plans were discussed for the County Convention.

The Farm-City Week food stand will be in the Lebanon Valley Mall, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 13 and 14. Proceeds will be given to a needy family in Lebanon County.

Edith Grumbine and Francis Krall volunteered to take charge of making 200 favors for the State Convention to be held January 11, at the Forum in Harrisburg.

Lancaster Society 14

Lancaster Farm Women society 14 met for a July evening picnic at the W. Tinney Pavilion in Strasburg. Hostesses Mary Dietzel, Elva Rowe, Roth Combs and Serena Groff received our "carried in" dishes and arranged a beautiful array of food. Roy Reinhart entertained with many recitations; a variation of themes - some serious meditations, some light humor, some reminiscent and some patriotic.

The program committee had a full day planned for Aug. 11. First, a stop at the Herr Potato Chip factory for a plant tour. Then on to Sandy Cove Conference Center for the morning program, lunch, and a relaxing afternoon on the beautiful grounds by the bay. A stop at Longwood Gardens for the Fountain Display concluded a great day.

On September 9, we met at the home of Gladys Esbenshade. Hostesses for the day were Mildred Herr, Mildred Horn, Mirian Leaman and Ruth Lonenecker. A dessert treat was enjoyed by all. President Ellen Newswanger conducted a business meeting called first for a devotional led by Mildred Herr who used Scripture from Isa. 40:31 and Joni Eareckson's Book Secret Strength for subject on Strength for Waiting. Our own Caroline Stoltzfus gave us a very professional demonstration on cake decorating. Farm Women Day held at Willow Valley Palm Court on October 14, at 9:30 a.m.

October 14, members gathered at the home of Pauline Stoltzfus. Pumpkin pie with apple cider was served by the hostesses Janet Leaman, Eileen McComas, Anna Marie Groff and Dorothy Musser. Anna Marie Groff encouraged us with God's word to Joshua and challenged us to be encouragers to one another and the many hurting people about us in these troubled days. Helen Hershey, chairlady of Sunshine Committee, wanted a picture of all the ladies with the items collected for the Happiness project to be delivered to the Christ's Home, which is a live-in home for children. Since mealtime takes food for 26-30 people (staff included) the need is real for them. Members donated 55 lb. sugar, 16 lb. long-grained rice, 2 gal. mayonnaise, 64½ oz. tuna, 23 cans of creamed soups and money that bought 35 lb. of hamburger. The October meeting is always an auction of the items members donate. Ellen Newswanger, the auctioneer, made it a fun time and a profitable one too.

The date for the County Convention at Farm and Home Center is Nov. 7. The Nov. meeting is planned early since an evening to Three Little Bakers is on the agenda.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — A reader requested a recipe for egg rolls. Thanks to Donna Marion, Westminster, MD, for sending a recipe.

Egg Rolls

- 4 teaspoons vegetable oil
- 1½ cups cooked pork, minced
- 2 stalks celery, minced
- 1 large onion, minced
- 1 cup bean sprouts
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 package egg roll wrapper
- 1 egg, beaten
- Oil for frying

Heat the oil in a large skillet. Add the pork and stir fry 2 minutes. Add the celery, onion, and bean sprouts, and stir fry 5 minutes over high heat. Add the sugar, soy sauce, salt and pepper. Drain and cool.

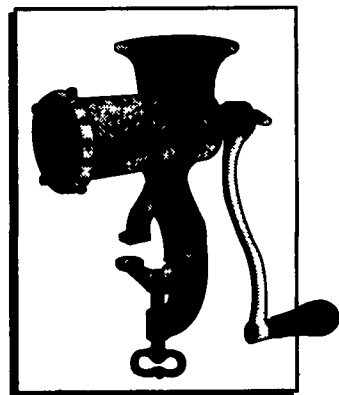

Brush the edges of the egg roll wrapper with the beaten egg. Place a small amount of filling on a wrapper and fold like an envelope, making certain the edges are sealed well. Fry in deep hot oil until light brown.

Hot Chinese Mustard

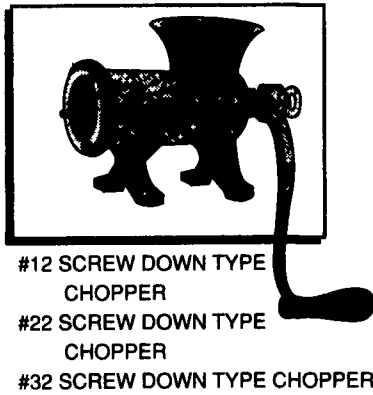

- 4 tablespoons dry mustard
 - 6 drops vegetable oil
 - 4 teaspoons vinegar
- Combine well. If too thick, add a few drops of vinegar.

Happy Halloween and Thankful Thanksgiving

Halloween is an exciting holiday for children. If you plan to take your child trick or treating, be sure to go along. Only a few houses will be sufficient. Then let her help hand out treats to those who come to your house. Be reassuring if anyone comes with a scary costume.

At Thanksgiving, include your child in the preparations. Let her help make a special recipe.

Let's Explore... The Foods We Eat

Corn Meal Muffins

Native Americans taught the settlers how to make corn breads. Try this one with your family.

- Ingredients
- 1 egg
 - 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons milk
 - 1/4 cup flour
 - 1 1/4 cups corn meal
 - 1 tablespoon sugar
 - 3 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 3 tablespoons vegetable shortening

Directions
Heat oven to 450°. Generously grease 12 muffin cups. Heat these in oven while preparing batter. Beat ingredients together until just smooth with a rotary beater. Pour or spoon batter into hot pan until almost full. Bake 10 to 15 minutes. Serve piping hot with butter.

Hold a Halloween Block Party

Invite your neighborhood to a family Halloween block party. Everyone can come in costume. Families can come dressed in costumes that go together like "The Three Bears", or they can come as a television family, or as ghosts.

Serve little pizza snacks or hot spicy cider that you made together.

Try dunking for apples, have prizes for costumes, plan games for all ages.

Hot Spicy Cider

- Ingredients
- 2 quarts apple cider
 - 1/2 tsp cinnamon
 - 1/4 tsp cloves
 - 1/4 tsp allspice

Directions
Heat cider, but do not boil. Add spices (more or less, according to your taste). Stir to blend.

Apple Pudding

- Ingredients
- 1 cup leftover rice
 - 1 cup applesauce
 - 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
 - 1 cup low-fat vanilla yogurt

Directions
Place cooked rice into mixing bowl. Add applesauce and cinnamon. Stir mixture. Add yogurt and stir. Spoon into dishes.

Roasted Pumpkin Seeds

- Ingredients
- pumpkin
 - salt
 - margarine or vegetable oil

Directions
Cut open the pumpkin. Scrape out the insides and save the seeds. Wash the seeds in a flat pan to rid them of any pumpkin membrane. Drain the seeds and spread them in a baking pan. Sprinkle salt over the seeds and add a few teaspoons of margarine or oil. Toast in a 300° oven, stirring occasionally, to brown the seeds evenly. They are finished when brown and crisp. Eat, shell and all.

CHOCOLATE PUMPKIN CAKE

- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 3 cups sugar
- 3/4 cup cocoa
- 2 cups cooked pumpkin
- 1 1/2 cups salad oil
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 4 eggs

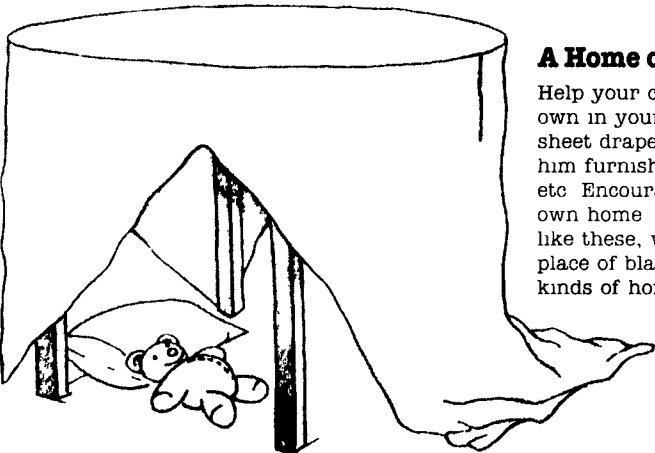

Mix sugar and oil. Sift together dry ingredients and add to sugar and oil mixture. Mix well. Add eggs and pumpkin; beat well. Bake in a loaf pan at 350 degrees for 45 to 60 minutes or until done.

Pass Around a Hug/How Many Hugs

Take time to pass around a hug among family members. Have a contest to see how many people the hug can be passed on to within a day's time. See if you can better your record!

With your child's help, find out how many different ways you can hug each other. Give each kind of hug a special name. For example, the "sandwich" hug (at least three people), or the "rock a bye" hug (rocking your child in your arms).

A Home of Your Own

Help your child construct a home of his own in your house with a blanket or sheet draped over a table or chair. Let him furnish it with pillows for a bed, etc. Encourage him to pretend it is his own home. Indian homes were much like these, with animal skins taking the place of blankets. Talk about other kinds of homes.

Jack O'Lanterns for Halloween

Your child can help choose the pumpkin. He can help the family design the face, and can take out all the pumpkin seeds and string. He can help make a pumpkin seed snack.

Easy Applesauce

- Ingredients
- 6 tart apples
 - 3-4 Tbsp honey
 - 1 1/4 c. water
 - cinnamon

Directions
Take advantage of the fall harvest for making some fresh applesauce. Your child can peel, core, and slice the apples, with your help. Put into pot with water. Cover and cook until tender—approximately 20-30 minutes. Add honey and cinnamon to taste. Makes 12 small servings.

Do not use honey in beverages and uncooked foods for infants under the age of one year. Honey may contain botulism toxins.

Ernest Auman

Outstanding Ag Student

Ernest Auman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Auman of Coburn, was recently named winner of the 1992 Dekalb Agricultural Accomplishment Award.

The award sponsored nationwide by Dekalb Plant Genetics, is presented to the outstanding senior agriculture student demonstrating superior scholarship, leadership, and supervised agricultural program.

Ernie attends Penns Valley High School, where he has been treasurer of the local FFA chapter for the past three years. His agri-

As this year's winner, Ernie receives a pin and certificate, and his name will be inscribed on a special plaque displayed in the agriculture classroom. The Dekalb Award is presented at nearly 3,000 schools annually.

The last thing we want to hear is that we are "falling apart." But, that is just what we have been listening to.

You see, Allen and I are taking an eight hour "55 Alive" mature driving course. Many organizations are sponsoring these courses to help older people drive safely.

The main emphasis seems to be on the state of our health. We're told that our reaction time is slower and our eyesight is failing along with our hearing. Another point that is stressed is medication. They feel that older people take a combination of medicines that could affect their driving ability.

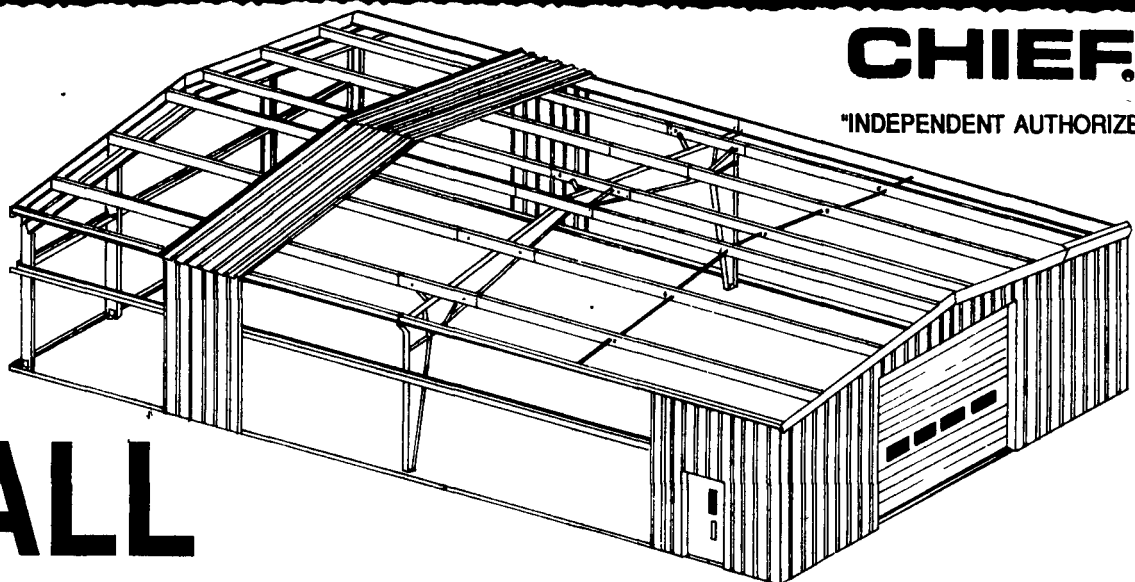

We were given a lesson from AARP and a Pennsylvania Driver's Manual. They both contain a lot of interesting information. In addition to these two thick books we got eleven pamphlets on everything from use of safety belts to auto insurance rates.

Recent changes in Pennsylvania laws regarding driving regulations were explained to us. Road conditions are an important part of safe driving. It was like being in school again as we answered multi-choice questions on various tests.

We were even given a phone number to call to check our hearing by telephone. And, do not follow others cars too closely — I think this is one of my faults.

The instructor ended the evening by telling us that following all of the rules was not enough. We should also follow the three "C's." He said they were "Caution, Courtesy and Common Sense."

Now I'm hoping we don't have an accident going or coming from the safe driving course.

The 1992 Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Queen, Mandy Hilbert, stands with Byrnlley Ghost, one of the Angus that she exhibited at the Pennsylvania Beef Expo.

Mandi Hilbert Is Cattlemen's Queen, FFA President For State

BETH MILLER

Adams Co. Correspondent

LITTLESTOWN (Adams Co.) — Mandy Hilbert has always been busy when it comes to farming, and this year she's busier than ever.

The Adams County girl has a full schedule because she is the 1992 State Cattlemen's Queen.

As if that wasn't enough, Hilbert, who lives on a 45-acre farm just outside Littlestown, is also the 1992 state president for the Future Farmers of America.

She took on both those duties after spending a year as the 1991 Cattlemen's Queen for Adams County.

"One of my jobs is to educate the consumer," Hilbert said of her Cattlemen's Queen role. "The Beef industry needs to be promoted."

That she has been doing.

For instance, she made an appearance at the Pennsylvania Beef Expo at Penn State University, not only as the Cattlemen's Queen, but as an exhibitor, too.

It was her first trip to the expo and she took four of her own steers. The animals all stood fifth in their class, she said.

It was a very exciting event seeing the top cattlemen of the state bringing their best animals to this competition and being a part of that," Hilbert said of the expo.

Hilbert won her crown as queen in competition with five contestants.

She already had the know-how and the experience for the job. She has 10 years of experience in 4-H and five years of experience in FFA.

Major events she will attend to help spread the Cattlemen's Association's message include the Keystone PA Livestock Dinner, and, of course, the State Farm Show.

One of the things she tells people she meets at these and other events is how healthy the beef of today is. "Beef is 25 percent leaner than it used to be and is an excellent source of protein that we need," she said.

To be eligible for the Cattlemen's crown in the first place, contestants must live on a farm where beef cattle are raised. In Hilbert's case, that requirement is met, but the farm where she and her parents, Harry and Mary Jane, and brother, Louis, live is mainly a hog-raising operation.

As state FFA president, Hilbert is part of a nationwide organization that has more than 400,000 members.

Her FFA post requires her to travel a great deal giving leadership workshops and motivating the students who one day will be the leaders of the state's agriculture industry.

Being FFA president has its perks also. For one thing, state FFA officers get paid tuition to Delaware Valley College to study the agricultural courses of their choice.

Hilbert, who is a senior at Littlestown High School, said she plans to do just that next fall. Her aim, she said, is to study animal science and communications.

Her FFA experience helped her decide on that educational route, she said. FFA, she said, enabled her to participate in projects in beef, swine and sheep, to take on experience and leadership projects, and to help with a community business.

FFA also helped her get her start with the Cattlemen's Association, she added.

Hilbert has big plans in the agriculture field.

Her Cattlemen's Association and FFA activities are just the start, she said.

She said she'd like to earn a degree to become a veterinarian, then get into research work for the National Livestock and Meats Board.

She'd like to get involved with the U.S. Department of Agriculture some day, too, and maybe even run for Congress or become Secretary of Agriculture.

But all that is years and a lot of work away.

Still, you can't help but get the feeling that if Hilbert can handle her Cattlemen's Queen and FFA duties, while at the same time being involved in field hockey and track at her high school, working for the federal government would be a snap.

So don't be surprised if you go to vote one day and see her name in the ballot.

She'd be a good bet for a good day's work.

Debra Naumann Works To Strengthen Families

LOU ANN GOOD

Lancaster Farming Staff
LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)

— If the kids are screaming and you are tired, frustrated and angry, take heart. Debra Naumann offers ideas for coping effectively.

As the Lancaster County Family Strengths Extension agent, Debra holds workshops to help today's parents.

The workshops are free. If you can't find time to attend the workshops, but you need ideas and direction in coping with family pressures, Debra can also help. The Extension has extensive information available free to those who request it. One of the most popular is a monthly newsletter called "Today's Working Parent." It includes how-to's on strengthening marriage and family relationships. The newsletter details fun activities to do with children.

Seasonal booklets called "Family Time" are also available. These are published for different age groups such as 2 to 3, 4 to 6, and 7 to 8 years of age. Activities from these booklets appeared in the October 24 and 31 issues of this paper on page B10. The booklets contain many more activities. If you would like a free copy, contact Debra if you live in Lancaster County. Those who live in other areas should contact their county Cooperative Extension listed in the phone directory.

In her work, Debra finds that one of the greatest needs is for parents to know how to maintain a balance between work and family.

In response to those needs, Debra is holding two workshops at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster. The first workshop "Finding Quality Time for Your Family" is scheduled for Tuesday, November 17, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

You will want to take this workshop if you are disappointed when family quality time is sabotaged by rushed schedules, unexpected events, disappointing moments or expectations for family fun that could never be met. Debra promises that you will learn ways to find more time for your family as well as new ideas for fun family-time activities.

Another free workshop scheduled for Tuesday, December 1, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., will center on "Managing Stress at Home and On-the-Job."

Debra said that this is the workshop to attend if the stress of maintaining a job and family responsibilities is wearing you down.

"Is stress affecting your body as well as your ability to get things done?" she asks. "Come and learn about stress and what personal stressors exist in your life. Then R-E-L-A-X as we learn some effective management techniques for you to use every day."

The up and coming thing that Debra is focusing on is providing 30 to 60 minutes worksite seminars for employees to attend during the lunch hour.

In addition to the two workshops mentioned previously, she also teaches Managing your Time Effectively, Effective Communication, Discipline: Sparing the Rod, Making Dinner a Family Affair, and Helping Your Child in Self Care.

The information that Debra uses in her workshops has been developed by the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology, directed by Dr. James Van Horn and James Beirlein.

"It's research-based information. It's current. And it uses the most effective methods," said Debra who wrote the information for the time management seminar.

"The feeling of being important in and to the family doesn't just happen — it develops," Debra said.

The materials and workshops provided by the Extension help each member to see his family as the most important group he is part of. Materials are also provided to private day care providers. These are called "Better Kid Care," and "Caregiver News."

Maybe you realize your family needs to change some bad habits, but you're unsure how to go about it without nagging. Here's an excerpt on Mealtime Conversation from "Today's Working Parent."

The next time your family sits down to dinner together, try this. Everyone make a conscious effort to hear how he or she speaks to other members of the family and how the other members speak to them.

Does the conversation have a positive or negative tone? Is it friendly or unfriendly? Kind or unkind?

When we speak to another person, we tell that person a lot about what we think of him just by the tone of our voice.

Try it with something simple like, "Pass the potatoes." It can be short or snappy, or it can be friendly. If you were sitting next to someone important, how would you make the request? Probably with a "please" somewhere in it.

It's easy to get into a rut and to draw those we love into it with us. A steady diet of snappy answers or requests won't make anyone feel good inside. They may pick up on the tone and try to defend themselves. Or worse, they may come to feel that they aren't worth a civil tone.

The old newspaper adage — "Show me, don't tell me" — applies here. Telling children to be civil and kind probably won't have any long-term payoff. But if everyone in a family makes a habit of checking how they speak to one another and try to tune up their tone, children will pick up on the atmosphere.

In 1988, Debra graduated from Penn State with a degree in individual and family studies. She worked as a case worker in foster care for three years, before joining the Penn State Extension staff in Lancaster last year.

Her duties are two-fold. She spends half of her time establishing 4-H clubs in the city and the remaining time teaching family strengths.

Debra, who grew up in the Lancaster area, had no background in Debra Naumann believes the biggest frustration facing parents today is maintaining a balance between work and family. 4-H or Extension. "It took me about a year to learn all about the Extension and 4-H," she said.

"It's a turn-around for me," she said. "Before I worked with people who already had severe problems. Now I work with people to solve problems before they become severe."

Debra is also working toward a

Plant Bulbs Now

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you'd like to have flowers in your yard as early as next January, spend an autumn afternoon planting bulbs, says a Penn State horticulturist.

Spring-flowering bulbs are available from garden centers and catalogs during September and October. "They're easy to plant and live for years," says Dr. J. Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture. "Best of all, they start brightening the landscape while it's still late winter."

For a steady procession of blooms from late January to late July, Nuss offers several planting suggestions:

Galanthus, or snow drops, bloom the earliest. "If you're wondering what those little white, bell-shaped flowers are blooming in people's yards starting in late January, they're probably snowdrops," says Nuss.

The original species crocuses start blooming in late January or early February, followed by large-flowered Dutch crocuses in February and March. Also blooming at this time are winter aconite, which resemble low-growing buttercups; chionodoxa, which have pink, white or blue star-shaped flowers; and squill, which have deep-blue flowers.

Anemone blanda bloom in March and April and have purple, pink and white asterlike flowers. Also blooming at this time are grape hyacinths, with grape-like clusters of purple or white flowers and iris reticulata, which grow only five inches tall.

"Some more familiar flowers also bloom during these months, such as hyacinths; double-early, Kaufmanniana and Fosteriana tulips; and miniature and trumpet daffodils," says Nuss.

Darwin hybrid tulips bloom in April and May, along with Triumph, Gregii, single-late, double-late, lily-flowered, Rembrandt and parrot tulips. They come in an array of heights, colors and markings. "Some interesting smaller bulbs, such as checkered lilies and Spanish bluebells, also bloom in late spring," says Nuss.

For flowers in June, plant Dutch irises, which look like slender bearded irises, and allium, a colorful and sweeter-scented relative of the onion. Alliums vary from four-inch stems with clusters of yellow flowers, to giant allium, which can reach three feet tall and is topped with a sphere of purple flowers five inches in diameter.

"You also can plant German irises in the fall," says Nuss. "These are the familiar irises with the fruity scent and large, bearded flowers. They grow from rhizomes planted about three inches deep, and they extend the blooming season to the end of July."

Spring-flowering bulbs can be planted in formal or informal beds, rock gardens and in established ground covers. Most prefer partial shade, so avoid planting them where they will receive direct midday sun. Heated basement walls can damage bulbs, so plant them at least five feet away from foundations.

"Keep in mind that you can fit a lot of bulbs in one space by planting large bulbs, covering them with two inches of soil and planting small bulbs on top of them," says Nuss. "You also can plant shallow-rooted annuals on top of bulbs."

Bulbs need good drainage and a high amount of organic matter, so if your soil is mostly sand or clay, mix in peat moss or compost until the organic matter is about 25 percent of the volume.

When planting tulips, daffodils and other large bulbs, dig out the whole bed to a depth of about 8 inches. Arrange the bulbs six inches apart with the pointed ends up. Smaller bulbs such as crocuses and grape hyacinths can be planted three inches apart and five inches deep.

Before covering the bulbs, add one rounded tablespoon per square foot of either a sulfur-coated, slow-release fertilizer, or one handful per square foot of bone meal plus one tablespoon per square foot of 8-8-8 or 10-10-10 fertilizer.

You then can replace half the soil and water the area thoroughly, add the remaining soil and water again. "A three-inch layer of wood chips, peat moss or bark will retain moisture and keep mud from splashing on the flowers next spring," says Nuss.

Squirrels and chipmunks dig up bulbs, especially crocuses. "If you anticipate a problem, spread fine-mesh chicken wire over the soil and then apply mulch," says Nuss.

When shoots start breaking through the soil in the spring, sprinkle a second application of fertilizer around them. As flowers fade, cut them off so they don't go to seed to rob nourishment from the bulbs.

"The foliage gathers nutrients for the next season's growth, so allow it to completely die before removing it," says Nuss. "Other than these few steps, spring-flowering bulbs don't need much attention. They'll come back year after year, just when winter seems as though it never will end."

Cover Crops Enrich Home And Garden

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — You may be ready for a break from garden chores by the end of fall, but the vegetable field never rests. Rain and snow leach vital minerals from the soil and wind may be blowing away valuable topsoil. Weed seed may be lining up for next spring's assault on the garden, and pests may be overwintering there.

Before you put your gardening tools away for the winter, plant a cover crop. "A cover crop is one that does not provide food, but it maintains and rejuvenates the garden soil," says Marcia Eames-Sheavly, gardening specialist with Cornell Cooperative Extension.

Traditional cover crops for tilled ground include ryegrass, winter rye, winter wheat, oats, white clover, sweet clover, other legumes, and buckwheat. These crops help retain the soil, prevent mineral leaching, reduce soil compaction, and competitively shade out weeds.

Cover crops, also known as "green manure," add organic matter to the soil when they are tilled under next spring, and their root systems improve soil aeration and drainage.

Cover crops can cut the cost of fertilizing the garden and increase organisms in the soil such as earthworms and microorganisms. Ryegrass is considered the first choice for a garden cover crop because it is a vigorous grower with an extensive root system occupying the same root zone as will the vegetables. The grasses are also easier for the home gardener to establish than legume cover crops.

Plant the rye in October; perennial ryegrass will produce a massive amount of top growth next spring. Before leaves grow too large, cut them back once with a mower, weed-eater, or scythe. Then incorporate thoroughly into the soil with a rototiller.

An alternative to rototilling is to use black plastic. Two weeks before you want to plant your vegetables, mow the ryegrass again, broadcast fertilizer, then cover the area with black plastic. Absence of light will kill the cover crop within two weeks, and transplants can be planted directly through the plastic into the garden.

Volunteer Efforts Fund 4-H Endowment

The efforts of hundreds of 4-H volunteer leaders across Pennsylvania have led to the creation of a new endowment through Friends of 4-H in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The 4-H Volunteer Leader Forum and Education Endowment will provide funds for training current and future 4-H volunteer leaders.

The endowment got its start at the 1991 Northeast Regional 4-H Leaders Forum held in Hershey. This annual event unites volunteer leaders from 12 states and

Washington, D.C., for training, discussion and networking sessions.

Many of the state's 15,000 adult and teen 4-H volunteer leaders pitched in to raise awareness of the event and to solicit donations from interested individuals, organizations, and associations.

"It was a real team effort," said Dr. Robert Lewis, professor of agricultural and extension education and a member of the planning committee. "We received contributions from almost every county in Pennsylvania, and 200 more leaders than anticipated attended the forum."

"The planning committee took every possible measure to keep costs down yet still deliver a high-quality program," Lewis said. "As a result, we ended up with more than $24,000 to start the endowment."

"The members of the planning committee agreed that the remaining money should be used for future volunteer leader education, since it was collected for that purpose."

Funds from the endowment will be used to support educational programs for 4-H volunteer leaders, including seminars, scholarships, and future forums.

"I'm continually impressed with the amount of time and effort people are willing to give," Lewis said. "4-H simply couldn't deliver what it does without the efforts of its volunteer leaders."

New Jersey 4-H Beef Show & Sale

The 5th annual New Jersey Beef Show and Sale was held at Cumberland Fairgrounds in Millville on October 10 - 11. Gloucester County's Country Cattlemen 4-H Club walked away with many top honors.

The grand champion Polled Hereford and overall grand champion steer was raised by Dan Winnberg of Mullica Hill and bred by Battleground Farm in Salem County. Grand champion crossbred steer was raised by Mark Banff of Pedricktown.

Reserve champion Angus steer was raised by Jim Winnberg of Mullica Hill. Grand champion feeder calf, which is the next year's project animal, was won by Mark Banff of Pedricktown.

Grand champion crossbred heifer was bred and owned by Paul Banff of Pedricktown. Grand champion cow/calf is owned by Paul Banff of Pedricktown. Reserve champion cow/calf is owned by Jason Allar of Williamstown.

Beginner showmanship grand champion was Jason Allar of Williamstown, who also got reserve in fitting. Beginner fitting grand champion was Jimm Winnberg of Mullica Hill. He also got reserve in showmanship.

Senior fitting and showmanship grand champion in both divisions was Dan Winnberg of Mullica Hill. Reserve showmanship was David Bennett of Mullica Hill.

There were more than 61 entries in the show. Gloucester

County won the top county herd with one group and placed third with the other.

This show is the completion of their market steer program. 4-H'ers purchase their steers in October, November, and December and raise them until the following October and sell them at the sale. The average price was 97¢ a pound.

The judge for the show was Keith Rooker of Uniontown, Pa.

York County 4-H Beef/Sheep Roundup

York County Sheep and Beef Club members held their annual 4-H roundup show and sale at Weikert's Livestock Buying Station at Thomasville recently. The roundup show and sale is the completion of the 4-H project for members of York County's 4-H sheep and beef clubs.

Judge Keith Rooker selected Brett Bishard's 1245 pound Angus steer as the grand champion steer, which was purchased for $3.60/pound by Hoss's Steak and Sea House. Robert A. Kinsley, Inc. purchased Shawn Waltmyer's reserve grand champion steer for $1.40/pound.

Other beef division winners and buyers included Kimberly Frantz, champion heavyweight, Brown's Orchard and Farm Market, $.85/pound; Kelly Myers, reserve champion mediumweight, Wildasin Bedliners, $1.05/pound; Kelly Dutrey, reserve champion heavyweight, $.81/pound, Randy Shultz, York Agway Farm Center and Travis Reid, reserve champion lightweight, $.85/pound, Godfrey Brothers Meats. The steer sale averaged $1 per pound with the grand and reserve champions included in the average and $.87/pound without the champions.

First place beef showmanship winners in each age category included Robin Shive, Seven Valleys, age 17-18; Shawn Waltmyer, Airville, age 15-16; Kelly Myers, Thomasville, age 12-14; and Tammi Grubb, Hanover, age 10-11.

Judge J.G. Warfield of Marriottsville, Md. selected Matt Trostle's 115-pound lamb as the grand champion lamb. Hoss's Steak and Sea House purchased the lamb for $3/pound. The lamb was then donated back to the 4-H lamb club. The animal was resold for $1.20/pound to Phil Sellers of Thomasville. Tabitha Ebersole of York showed the reserve champion lamb, a 115-pound Hampshire lamb that sold to Reedy's Hampshires for $1.10/pound.

Other division winners and buyers included champion lightweight, Kelly Myers, Byron S. Waggoner, General Contractor, $1.70/pound; champion mediumweight, Mike Olson, Creek View Acres—the Olson's, $1/pound; reserve champion lightweight, Heather Bankert, Moorman Feed Company, $1.35/pound; reserve champion mediumweight, Lisa Dehoff, Irvin Rappoldt, $1.25/pound.

Matt Trostle, Red Lion, won the champion fitter award and Lisa Dehoff, Glen Rock, received the reserve champion fitter award. Jodi Dutrey, Dallastown, won the champion showman award, while Drew Bankert, Red Lion, won the reserve champion showman award. The lamb sale averaged $1.10/pound including champion animals and $1.06/pound without champion animals.

4-H livestock sales are open auctions where any interested person may bid. The buyer has the option to either pay the full price bid at the sale, or to make a donation to the 4-H member by paying only the premium bid above the buyback price offered by the packer for the animal.

For more information about the 4-H livestock program, contact Tim Beck at the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office (717) 757-9657.

4-H Beef Club

The Lancaster County 4-H Beef Club met October 14 at 7:30 p.m., at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. The meeting was called to order by the president, Dwain Livengood, after which Amy Hoffines led the pledge of allegiance, and Peter Hoffines led the 4-H pledge.

Livestock extension agent, Chester Hughes, gave an introduction of the club's rules, activities, and opportunities to the new members present. We then heard several leaders' reports on the recent local fairs. The club decided to donate $200 to the Meats Judging Team for their trip to Louisville for the National Contest in November.

Larry Weaver gave us a detailed talk on "Calf Selection." Some topics he discussed were the conformation, temperment, and health of the new calves. He also talked about the work and dedication involved for the benefit of the new members.

We then saw a video of the 4-H Beef Roundup held this past August.

The next meeting will be held at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center on Wednesday, December 9, at 7 p.m. We will have Christmas party with the Sheep and Swine clubs. We will also discuss plans for the Farm Show in January and the banquet in February.

FIVE RULES THAT GOVERN MANAGING POULTRY

William D. Weaver, Jr.
Head, Dept. of Poultry Science

Poultry management is a term that we use daily in the poultry industry. We state that the management is "good," or that it is "poor," or we sometimes say that his/her management has improved and that grower payments or returns have also improved.

But how do we define good and poor poultry management? Certainly we all recognize that management is complicated and can involve a sophisticated set of procedures.

However, for the sake of argument and for the sake of simplicity, let's define poultry management as a system that meets the birds' needs in the areas of light, feed, water, temperature, and air quality. Following is a general discussion of each of these areas:

- Light. Producers must consider both intensity and duration when considering the light needs of birds. Generally meat type birds are grown under continuous or near continuous illumination and at an intensity of 3 to 5 foot candles. Breeder and layer pullets are normally produced in light-controlled houses and are provided with a constant day length of approximately eight hours. Light duration will be increased to 14 to 16 hours when these birds are moved to the laying houses. Light intensity for table egg layers is normally maintained at under one foot candle and the intensity for breeders between 3 and 5 foot candles.

- Feed. Feed must first be formulated to meet the nutrient needs of the bird. The specific requirements for amino acids (protein) energy, minerals, and vitamins must be met. Feed must also be presented in a way that will allow birds to consume feed in an efficient way. Adjustment of feeder height and feed depth, and the use of supplemental feed trays and paper for starting chicks, must be managed. When feed is pelleted, the quality of the pellets and crumbles must also be monitored.

- Water. The chicken portion of the commercial poultry industry (other than turkeys) is moving rapidly to closed (nipple) drinkers. These systems allow birds to drink water that has not been potentially contaminated by feed and other birds.

- Temperature. Birds perform most efficiently when maintained in a zone of thermoneutrality. When simply stated, this is the temperature in which birds are the most comfortable. For both chickens and turkeys, this temperature range starts at 88 to 90 degrees F for day old birds, is reduced to 65 to 70 degrees F at approximately five weeks, and then is maintained at this level for the remainder of the bird's life.

- Air quality. Poor air quality is normally associated with high levels of particulates (dust, etc.) and noxious gases (ammonia, carbon monoxide, etc.). Generally dust is a symptom of an environment that is too dry, and ammonia (normally if the producer controls ammonia others gases are not a problem) an environment that is too moist. When ventilation systems are properly designed and operated, an equilibrium can be reached that will allow the producer to control both of these conditions.

Therefore, when you hear the somewhat abstract and generally all-encompassing phrase "good" or "poor" poultry management, remember the five components of management: light, feed, water, temperature, and air quality.

Silo Gas Is Deadly

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Did you ever consider a silo full of freshly chopped corn silage as a potential death trap?

Complex chemical reactions involved in the formation of silage give off lethal nitrogen gases and carbon dioxide. The nitrogen gases (predominantly nitrogen dioxide) present the greatest threat in and around upright silos. No one ever should enter an oxygen-limiting silo because there never is enough air to support life.

Avoid breathing silo gas. According to John G. Pollock, executive director, NYS Rural Health and Safety Council, just two or three breaths of strong gas can permanently damage the lungs. Staying in the gas may seem okay because you lose the smell. Several hours may pass before serious problems occur.

Silo gas has a disagreeable odor which has been described by some as being bleach-like. The color may range from red through orange to dark brown. Silo gas is heavier than air so it will settle to the lowest area. It will settle on top of the silage or drain down into the silo room if silo doors are open. In the silo room or barn, it becomes a hazard to both man and beast.

Follow the precautions: stay out of the silo for at least two weeks after filling, if at all possible. If you must enter to level out the silage, do it immediately after filling and leave the blower running while you are there. Keep the doors between the silo room and the main barn closed, but open all windows and exterior doors of the silo room to allow fresh air to enter. If you experience any coughing or throat irritation in the silo, get out immediately and seek medical attention.

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within FIVE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next five years.

Ag One fire extinguishers use halon to quickly and easily extinguish fires around the home and farm.

White-New Idea Expands Ag One Supplies

COLDWATER, Ohio — The branded line of parts and supplies for White-New Idea continues to grow. White-New Idea recently announced the addition of Halon Fire Extinguishers to the offering of Ag One items.

These new Ag One fire extinguishers use halon, a clear chemical vapor which halts the combustion reaction that fuels fires. Since many fires start small but spread quickly, it is imperative to be able to quickly extinguish the flame. Halon is fast acting and easy to use, enabling quick reaction time.

Ag One halon fire extinguishers are non-toxic and because it is a vapor, there is no residue to clean up. Halon has long been used in many industries, including the NASA Space Program, Indy car racing equipment, commercial aircraft, as well as in the computer industry.

Available in two sizes, 2BC and 5BC, Ag One halon fire extinguishers are available at White-New Idea dealers.

For more information, call (800) 767-3221.

COLUMBUS, Ind. — Charles Hooper of C.B. Hooper & Son in Intercourse, Pa., viewed the latest in agricultural equipment at the Farm Progress Show, including a prototype of the Case International Quadtrac™.

According to Hooper, the Quadtrac is a futuristic tractor that features crawler tracks instead of wheels on its four axle points.

"The Quadtrac was developed in response to customer concerns about soil compaction," said Richard M. Christman, senior vice president sales and marketing, North America. "Case has been extremely successful in the development of high-performance, high-horsepower tractors. The concept behind the Quadtrac is to provide all the customer-accepted Case advantages of our biggest tractors while at the same time reducing ground pressure."

"The Quadtrac is a prototype unit," said Christman. "It will be used in test programs on farms in North America, after which decisions will be made regarding production."

Christman said the tractor's significance is that it demonstrates that Case is listening to customers, and that the company is once again leading the way when it comes to new technologies.

According to Hooper, Case also introduced a new series of Maxxum tractors at the show, including the new 112 PTO horsepower 5250, which is now the largest tractor in the popular Maxxum line.

Hooper noted that several other key units were featured at the show. "Case had a special, engineering-concept tractor on display — a track version of a high-horsepower row-crop tractor. Case also exhibited a new Case International four-wheel-drive tractor with optional steerable front axle," said Hooper. This tractor, with 300 engine horsepower, is capable of 30-inch row-crop work.

"When dealers like Charles Hooper attend a show like this, they're looking at what's new, what's hot and what's best, and especially for a clear indication that the manufacturer they represent is on the cutting edge," said Christman.

"With more than 42,000 square feet of display space, the Case IH exhibit is a dominant part of the Farm Progress Show," said Christman. "And what's more important, every piece of equipment on display here demonstrates that Case is continuing to take an aggressive stance toward leadership in design and technology, making sensible, customer-driven changes that improve efficiency and performance."

Ceramic Nozzle Gives Longer Life

WHEATON, Ill. — Growers who apply abrasive formulations of crop protectants, or acid-based fertilizers, will find the new TX ConeJet® ceramic hollow cone spray tips ideal.

The ceramic orifice combined with the small droplets of a ConeJet nozzle pattern assures uniform coverage of crops with a consistent pattern in a wear-resistant nozzle.

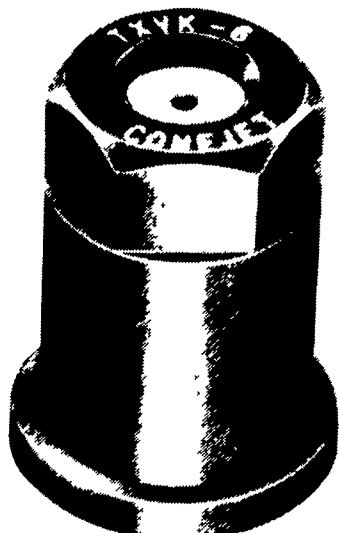

"Ceramic orifices are essential to resist the extreme abrasiveness when growers apply wettable powder formulations of insecticides or fungicides at high pressure," said Dr. Stephen Pearson, technical services manager, Spraying Systems Co., manufacturer of TeeJet spray products. Ceramic TX ConeJet nozzles complement the ceramic nozzle styles available from Spraying Systems Co., including ceramic XR TeeJet® extended range flat spray tips, ceramic TeeJet® flat spray tips, and ceramic disc-core nozzles.

The new ceramic TX ConeJet nozzle brings the outstanding wear-resistant capabilities of ceramics to the popular hollow cone nozzle style. ConeJet nozzles are well-known for producing very small droplets yielding thorough, uniform coverage essential for effective control when spraying fruits and vegetables.

Ceramic TX ConeJet nozzles are available in standard sizes from 0.043 gallons per minute up to 1.2 gallons per minute at recommended pressures from 30 to 300 psi. All ceramic TX ConeJet tips use the VisiFlo® color coding system for quick, easy identification of flow rates and are designed to fit TeeJet nozzle bodies including the Quick TeeJet® nozzle body system for quick, no-tool nozzle changes.

Deere Utility Vehicles Called 'Gators'

RALEIGH, N.C. — John Deere introduced two general all-purpose turf and off-road vehicles dubbed "Gators" for their rugged design, aggressive traction, stability, and light footedness. The Gators provide a low center of gravity and a wide-stance front end.

The 10-hp Gator 4x2 rolls on four wheels with 2-wheel drive and differential lock. It's powered by a single-cylinder air-cooled engine. The 10 cubic foot cargo box hauls 500 pounds. Payload capacity with operator and passenger is 900 pounds.

The 18-hp Gator 6x4 rolls on six wheels with 4-wheel drive and differential lock. It's powered by a twin-cylinder liquid-cooled engine. The 11 cubic foot cargo box hauls 800 pounds. Total payload capacity with operator and passenger is 1,200 pounds.

"We call them Gators because they're agile and tough, yet light on their feet," said Mike Bedis, marketing coordinator for the Wisconsin-based Horicon Works. "Maximum ground pressure for a fully-loaded Gator 6x4 is only 7 pounds per square inch. That's the lightest in the industry. It prevents rutting fine turf and let's you travel through swampy areas a lot more easily."

A new continuously-variable transmission (CVT) drives an improved heavy-duty transaxle that runs in an oil bath for long life. Halogen headlights are standard. Other features include rack-and-pinion steering and internal wet disk brakes.

Limousin Breeding Grows At Record Pace

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — For the sixth consecutive year, Limousin has grown at a record pace as measured by registrations through the North American Limousin Foundation (NALF).

With 78,376 head registered during NALF's last fiscal year, Limousin becomes the third largest major beef breed in the United States.

"Limousin breeders are excited about such a long period of growth because it underscores the fact that these genetics are serving the bottom line of the beef industry," said Dr. Wayne Vanderwert, NALF executive vice-president. He explains that breeders continue to prove Limousin's capability and acceptability through this sustained stage of market expansion.

The 5.3 percent increase in registrations more than a year ago reflects renewed acceleration compared to the previous year. One reason for that can be seen in the breed's increased commercial acceptance, as measured by registered Limousin cattle transferred to first-time Limousin users.

According to Vanderwert, "The most exciting thing about this breed's expansion is the fact that the breeders refuse to become complacent about their success. Through their breeding efforts and the new NALF programs they have established, they continue to strive for ways to serve the commercial industry more and more efficiently."

The programs Vanderwert mentions include the Feeder's Edge Limousin cattle feeding and carcass education program geared to offering purebred breeders a bird's eyeview of the real world to cattle feeding and what genetics must ultimately accomplish in the feedlot and on the rail.

ELECT SHEILA MILLER STATE REPRESENTATIVE - 129TH DISTRICT

Sheila, Mike and Emilie Miller own and operate a 63-acre farm in Tulpehocken Twp., Berks County where they raise beef cattle.

"Over the years, I have worked closely with my friends in Ag Republicans to keep farming represented at all levels of government. I was glad to see fellow farmer, Ernie Miller, become Berks County Commissioner.

"I was asked by friends and neighbors to put my nine years experience as executive director of the Senate Agriculture & Rural Affairs to work as a legislator in Berks County."

"I helped to write the Farmland Preservation Law and am pleased to serve on both the state and county boards. Keeping our farmland in production is a priority."

"To be a good farmer, you have to work hard. To be a good legislator takes the same hard work."

FARM MANAGEMENT

EPA RELEASES NEW WORKER PROTECTION STANDARD

Russ Powell
Extension Agent
Business Management

The U. S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has released new regulations revising the Worker Protection Standard. The revisions are intended to reduce the risk of pesticide poisonings and injuries among agricultural workers and pesticide handlers through reduced exposure.

The revised Worker Protection Standard (WPS) is much broader in scope than before and it is important that you understand and comply with all provisions that apply to your business. A summary of the new WPS follows.

Who Is Covered?

The new WPS covers all employees (including agricultural employees) that mix, load, apply, or may otherwise be exposed to pesticides. Landscape firms and garden centers are not considered to be agricultural establishments and are not covered, but nurseries and greenhouses are subject to the law.

The new WPS is directed toward two types of employees: 1) pesticide handlers who mix, load, or apply agricultural pesticides, and those who clean or repair equipment, etc. and 2) agricultural workers who perform tasks related to cultivation and harvesting of plants on farms, in greenhouses, nurseries, or forests.

It is important to note that unlike OSHA's Field Sanitation Standard that exempts employers of 10 or less employees, the new WPS does not. There are no exemptions!

Requirements

The revised regulations expand requirements for warnings about applications, use of personal protective equipment, and restrictions on entry to treated areas. There are also provisions that cover decontamination, emergency assistance, and pesticide safety training.

Pesticide labels must be amended to include application restrictions, restricted-entry intervals, personal protective equipment, and worker notification about pesticide applications. Details about the provisions of the law follow.

Eliminating or Reducing Exposure

To limit pesticide exposures, restricted-entry intervals (REIs) are established for all pesticides used in the production of agricultural plants. The REI is a period of time after a pesticide application during which entry into a treated area is restricted. REI information will appear on revised product labels between April 15, 1993 and April 15, 1994.

Current REIs will remain if they meet EPA guidelines, otherwise the following REIs will be established:

- 48-hour REI for any highly toxic product because of dermal toxicity or skin or eye irritation.

- 24-hour REI for any moderately toxic product because of dermal toxicity, or skin or eye irritation.

- 12-hour REI for all other products.

Provisions to reduce overall exposure to pesticides include prohibiting handlers from applying a pesticide in a way that will expose workers or other persons, excluding workers from areas being treated with pesticides, and excluding workers from areas affected by an REI.

There are several exceptions that allow non-hand labor (for example, irrigation adjustment) up to one hour per worker per day, or during a declared agricultural emergency (such as a freeze warning); protecting early-entry workers working in treated areas during a REI, including special instructions and use of PPE; notifying workers about treated areas so they can avoid inadvertent exposures; and protecting handlers, including monitoring while handling toxic pesticides and duties related to proper use of PPE.

Mitigating Pesticide Exposure

Provisions for reducing pesticide exposures that occur include decontamination supplies must be provided for handlers and workers along with an ample supply of water, soap, and towels for routine washing and emergency decontamination. The supplies must be within 1/4 mile of all workers and handlers. Pesticide handler requirements specify that there must be clean coveralls at handler sites, and eyeflush water must be immediately available to handlers and early-entry workers if they are required to wear protective eyewear.

Emergency assistance provisions specify that transportation

must be available to a medical facility if a worker or handler may have been poisoned along with information about the pesticide(s) involved.

Informing Employees About Hazards

Employers must provide information about pesticide hazards through the following:

- Pesticide safety training is required for all workers and handlers. The training must be provided by a certified pesticide applicator, a trainer of certified pesticide applicators, someone who has completed an approved training instructors course, or a trained pesticide handler. Although bilingual instruction is not specified, the training must be presented in a manner the worker can understand.

- Pesticide safety poster must be posted. Labeling information must be made available and pesticide handlers and early-entry workers must be informed about pesticide label safety information.

- Emergency information about the location of the nearest emergency medical facility must be posted. Specific information on pesticide treatment must be accessible in a central location for at least 30 days after REIs have expired.

Compliance Dates

None of the provisions of the Worker Protection Standard will be enforced until specific worker protection requirements and statements referring to the Standard appear on pesticide labels (April 15, 1993 to April 15, 1994).

Compliance begins as soon as a product with revised labeling is used. Prepare for implementation of this regulation.

Although no mention of penalties has been made, rest assured that they will probably be substantial. Watch for additional information as it becomes available.

Farmers' Christmas Market Planned

CHELTENHAM, Md. — The Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market is planning its second annual Farmers Christmas Market.

On Saturday, November 28, the inside of the state warehouse will be open for a Christmas market, to operate every Saturday and Sunday until Christmas from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Farmers are needed to sell poinsettias, wreaths, crafts, dried flowers, winter fruits and vegetables, honey, jams and jellies, baked goods, hams, nuts, etc. The goal is to fill the warehouse with quality homemade products that farm families have made to sell during the holiday season.

Christmas trees are the only item limited to one Maryland Christmas tree grower. The fees to sell at the market are $15 per day, $25 per weekend, or $90 for a season permit.

The Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market was created in 1989 to provide an opportunity for farmers to expand into alternative crops such as fruits and vegetables. The five southern Maryland counties, Tri-County Council, the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the Governors Task Force, and the Cooperative Extension Service worked together to open a retail farmers market and a wholesale fruit and vegetable auction.

The market is continually looking for opportunities to assist farmers. The Farmers Christmas Market provides farmers with additional opportunities to diversify and sell their homemade crafts and goods.

Farmers interested in participating should contact Regina Prunty, market manager, (800) 533-FARM (3276) or (301) 372-1066.

Model 90 Farrowing Crate

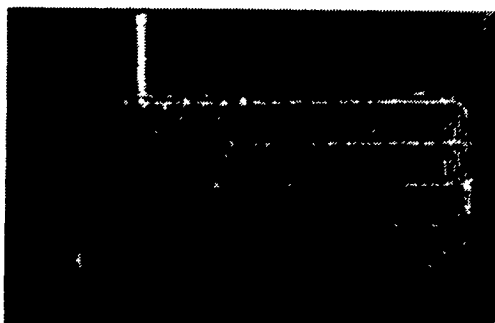

GALVANIZED!

Constructed from heavy gauge materials this crate is designed to reduce crushing, with sow comfort in mind. The bowed bottom bars makes for a comfortable 33" crate width when the sow lays down, yet the adjustable anti-crush bars eliminates the sow from carelessly dropping in the piglets.

This movement restriction does not hamper the sow as she lays down, or wants to stand up, as the bars slide up and out of her way.

Disaster Benefits Available

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Farm producers may apply for 1992 disaster benefits for crop losses under the Dire Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act.

To remain eligible, farmers with losses greater than 65 percent must purchase crop insurance for the 1993 crop. Eligible producers with production losses less than 65 percent are not required to purchase multiple peril crop insurance.

In order to help farmers comply with the law, the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation has extended the sales closing date for purchase of insurance on wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, and rye with sales closing dates of September 30 to October 31. This will allow farmers an opportunity to meet the crop insurance requirement for disaster assistance.

Disaster Program applications must be made at the Lancaster County ASCS Office by February 12, 1993. Phase II and Phase III of the program which includes crop losses from 1990 through 1992 is now being implemented.

Anyone with questions about crop insurance or the disaster program should call the Lancaster County ASCS Office at (717)397-6235 or their insurance agent.

Strong Job Prospects Boost Ag College Enrollment

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Attracted by a strong job market and compelled by concern about the environment, more students are pursuing college degrees in agriculture-related fields, said an administrator in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

And more of those students are finding employment after graduation. A survey by Penn State's Career Development and Placement Services shows that the college's 1990-1991 baccalaureate graduates lead other colleges in finding work.

"The survey shows that 1990-1991 graduates of several other colleges are lagging behind their predecessors in securing a job," said Dr. James Mortensen, associate dean for resident education in the College of Agricultural Sciences.

"But in the agricultural sciences, 82.5 percent of 1990-1991 graduates found full-time jobs within three months, compared with 81 percent of 1989-1990 graduates. Our graduates were offered a mean salary of close to $20,000. Another 10 percent of our graduates pursued advanced degrees."

A projected 48,000 openings await approximately 43,500 graduates in agricultural majors each year, according to a study by the Cooperative State Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Up to 11 percent of these jobs will remain unfilled or will be filled by graduates from other majors.

"Because of the high demand for agricultural graduates, more students are showing an interest in all of the agricultural majors," Mortensen said.

"This school year, enrollment in our college increased by 6.5 percent. Last year, enrollment increased by 8 percent."

Women, minorities, and students from nonfarm backgrounds are among the increasing numbers enrolling in agricultural colleges nationwide. Only about 15 percent of the students now enrolled in Penn State's 21 agricultural majors come from farms.

Mortensen expects demand for agricultural graduates to remain high. "Most employment opportunities will be found in food science, marketing, merchandising, and technical sales positions," he said. "Those seeking careers as scientists or engineers also will find a promising job market."

Greater awareness of environmental issues is opening opportunities for students interested in soil and water conservation, wildlife, and fisheries science and forest science, Mortensen said. "Over the past few years, enrollment in the college's environmental resource management major has doubled."

Companies recruiting agricultural majors include Continental Grain, Monsanto, Procter and Gamble, Excel, Dow-Elanco, Oscar Mayer, DeKalb, Merck & Co., Halliburton, Kellogg, Frito-Lay, General Mills, and General Foods.

Those interested in exploring job options in agriculture can request a free copy of "Careers in the Food, Agricultural and Natural Resource Sciences," Penn State's guide to professional opportunities for agricultural sciences graduates.

The guide summarizes the college's majors, including agricultural engineering, turfgrass science, wildlife and fisheries science, wood products, and environmental resource management. It includes job market projections and average starting salaries, as well as information about college and university career development services.

To obtain the guide, contact the Office for Resident Education, 101 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-7521.

PennWest Announces Profitable Quarter

MERCER (Mercer Co.) — Penn West Farm Credit, ACA (Agricultural Credit Association), with total loan volume in excess of $312 million, reported its third consecutive profitable quarter. Net earnings of $150,000 for the quarter ending September 30, 1992 brought the year-to-date figure to $850,000.

The ACA has recorded a year-to-date provision for loan losses of $1.5 million, which is indicative of continuing pressures in the farm and general economy. The addition of this provision to total loan reserves brings the allowance for loan losses to $5.5 million or 1.8 percent of net loans outstanding.

First they gave us "trickle down" economics. Now they're trying to sell us "free trade."

The Bush administration is completing free trade negotiations in Mexico and Europe that could prove very costly to our family farms and rural communities.

These agreements could: 1) open our borders to a flood of imports, undermining domestic prices and markets; 2) weaken health and safety standards on food imported into this country; and 3) cause the loss of thousands of jobs in small rural manufacturing businesses to Mexico and other low wage countries.

Under terms of these agreements, international organizations—not responsible to any branch of our government—will have the power to shape new laws that could seriously harm U.S. consumers, workers, farmers and our environment.

The Congress we elect this year will make the final decision. On November 3, vote for the candidates who'll take a stand for fair trade, not just "free" trade.

Vote Lynn Yeakel for U.S. Senate.

Use Slit-Tillage This Year

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Have you considered trying slit-tillage after this year's harvest?

The Lancaster County Conservation District continues to have two slit-tillers available for your use. Both a two-toothed mode, which can be horse drawn, and a five-toothed model are available free of charge on up to five acres.

Those who like the job that the slit-tiller does may use it for additional acreage by paying a maintenance charge of $2.50 per acre.

Slit-tillage is a practice that utilizes straight narrow chisel teeth on 30-inch spacings. It leaves about two times the residue cover as the chisel plow and about the same surface roughness. Silt-till, however, leaves the soil loose enough to absorb the rains, yet solid enough to control erosion. A slit-till system reduced runoff 40% when compared to chisel plow and moldboard plow systems on 1989 test plots in West Lampeter Township, Lancaster County.

To maximize the benefits of slit-tillage, all work should be done on the contour and at least 30% residue should be left on the surface. The combination of slits and undisturbed soil can act as small terraces, keeping more soil, water, and nutrients on the field where they can be utilized by the crop. Slit-tillage at a depth of 10 or more inches should also help to break up hard pan problems.

For more information about slit-tillage, or to use a slit-tiller on a free trial basis, contact Eric Ashley at the Lancaster County Conservation District office at (717) 299-5361.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

* Insta Pro Process

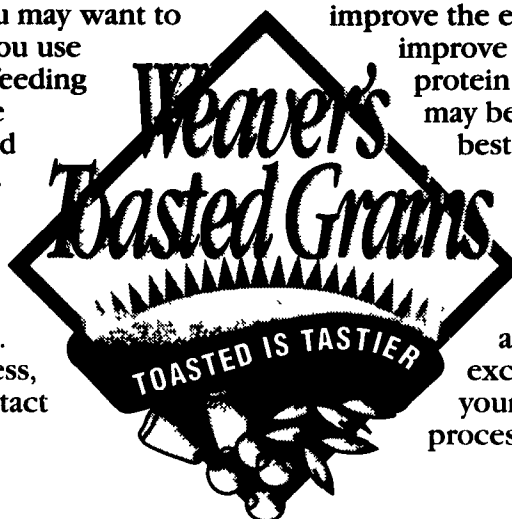

Are you feeding your herd roasted beans?

If your beans are being heat processed by traditional roasting methods, you may want to rethink your crop investment. You use soybeans in your cropping and feeding program because of their double cropping potential, and the weed control that crop rotation offers. Why lose that advantage with inconsistent moisture and by-pass protein levels?

Weaver's Toasted Grains offers you an exciting advantage. With their unique toasting process, the soybeans never come in contact with the flame that can affect nutrition. By feeding toasted soybeans you will improve the energy density of your ration, improve palatability, increase by-pass protein levels and destroy molds that may be present in the raw soybeans. But best of all, you will improve your cash flow, and isn't that what really matters?

The soybeans you feed will be clean and nutritious, and Weaver's Toasted Grains offers an economical storage and exchange program. Not only will your herd benefit from this unique process, but you will too.

With this concentrate feeding system LESS MEANS MORE

Dairymen report a 7-8% increase in milk yield with 5% less concentrate input with the new VA 500.

Each cow's ration is fed automatically according to her individual lactation curve. Feeding for production means high producing cows get more. Every cow pays her way. The whole herd can be housed together and you don't need complicated computer support systems for operation.

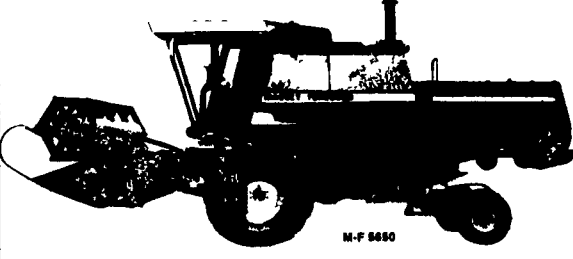

Make your concentrate work harder.

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

BARN CLEANERS

Built to clean faster...
built to last longer!

All-forged Hook-Link® chain... available on Super 300 and Super 500 barn cleaners
Extra thick steel at all wear points

IMPORTANT: Look for the "parting line" on any barn cleaner chain you buy. It shows where excess metal has been trimmed off. It is your assurance that the link was totally forged, not just punched out of a flat steel bar with grain flow in one direction only. You want a totally-forged link because forging changes the grain on the steel, causing it to curve in unbroken flow lines around the contours of the link, giving the link greater strength to serve you longer.

'TIS THE SEASON!

Yes - The Harvest Season is Here!
Store your good corn crop in a
POURED CONCRETE SOLLENBERGER SILO.

Units available for "High-Moisture" shelled corn or "Ground Ear" corn. Bottom-Unloading or Top-Unloading. Consider the Many Advantages of Concrete! 6" thick concrete walls to keep feed cooler because concrete reflects the sun's rays, and has 25 times more insulating power than steel. The concrete silo has a much lower maintenance requirement because there are not thousands of bolts to rust and work loose and no seams to reseal. The poured concrete silo is heavily reinforced to give you a very strong structure.

Unload from the bottom with a simple auger for high-moisture shelled corn, (least expensive), Laidig 43 for shelled corn or cob corn, or Flying Dutchman for grains or Forages.

12'x80' pictured: High-moisture shelled corn capacity of 7,000 bu. Built on your foundation for less than $25,000. with auger installed.
